Marshall Ceremony Monday

General Arrives By Plane From Honolulu Today; Byrnes Has Many Well Wishers

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—(AP) — Gen. George C. Marshall will be sworn in as Secretary of State at the White House at eleven a. m. (EST) Monday and probably begin at once conferences with President Truman and retiring Secretary Byrnes on outstanding foreign policy issues.

A check with officials today shows he faces three main problems:

(1) Fully acquainting himself with American policy on many issues but especially on the German peace settlement to come up at the Moscow conference opening March 10;

(2) Deciding on top aides and officials to work with him in the state department;

(3) Working with President Truman on various shifts in important diplomatic assignments abroad.

The White House announced the hour for the swearing-in-ceremony as Byrnes, his desk cleared and his brief case packed, opened the great, wine-red doors of his office and received scores of state department men and women who shook his hand and wished him well.

Byrnes May Return

The privately expressed conviction of his close associates is that Byrnes is saying farewell to the state department but not permanently to Washington. There is speculation that he may someday return either to the supreme court or to the senate or accept from President Truman a less strenuous job. His friends say they know he will not retire to a life of inactivity.

Byrne will attend the ceremony at which Chief Justice Vinson will administer the oath to Marshall. He will leave here with his close friends and former law partner, retiring Assistant Secretary of State Donald Russel, for his Spartanburg, S. C., home by train late Monday night.

Arrives Today

Marshall is expected here by plane from Honolulu tomorrow. He had been resting in Hawaii from the strain of his 13 months as Mr. Truman's trouble-shooter in China.

The general, according to reports here, used his ten-day stay in Honolulu to study many questions of American foreign policy with which he was unfamiliar. Reports for his background are understood to have been sent from Washington.

He is also believed to have given some thought to personnel problems. Russel already has resigned and another close friend of Byrnes, Counsellor Benjamin Cohen, is expected to ask his release. All other top state department officials have submitted their resignations to the President as a matter of form, giving Marshall free range in choosing to retain or replace them.

Bringing His Secretary

Marshall is expected to bring in a former army colonel and his secretary when he was chief of staff, Frank McCarthy, who has recently been associated with the motion picture industries control organization in Hollywood. McCarthy served a brief term as assistan secretary of state in charge of administration but most officials believe that if he is brought back it will be in the capacity of a special assistant to his old boss.

More Balmy Temperatures

By The Associated Press

The weather man, with an uneasy eye on several shifting storm centers, cautiously predicted more balmy temperatures—from 10 to 20 degrees above normal—for Kansas and Missouri today (Sunday).

The temperatures, he is pretty sure, will be in the upper 40s and lower 50s again, but he is not so definite about the clouds and their behavior.

There will be light rain in southeastern Missouri and southern Oklahoma. The clouds may increase and the rain may spread north into Kansas and Missouri, but only further developments will tell, the forecast said.

The uncertainty lies in a storm centered over British Columbia, a high pressure area that shows signs of breaking down over the Rockies, and a storm that indicates it will move eastward from the Gulf of Mexico.

The Weather

Missouri—mostly cloudy Sunday, continued mild, high in mid-40s to low 50s cloudy, Monday, colder north.

Thought For Today

In darkness there is no choice. It is light that enables us to see the differences between things; and it is Christ that gives us light. —J. C. and A. W. Hare.

Woman Put On Fur Coat, Jaunty Hat And Pickets Pickets

BRAZIL, Ind., Jan. 18—(AP)—Mrs. Ethel James, proprietor of the Mission Inn, picketed the pickets at her eating house today.

The hotel and restaurant employes and bartenders union (AFL), charging Mrs. James refused to permit her employes to join the union, placed pickets in front of the restaurant. Mrs. James, wearing a fur coat and a jaunty hat, marched in step with the pickets, wearing a sandwiches board which said:

"This is not a saloon."

Former MU Quarterback Here Tuesday

Guest of Optimist Club; Local Boys Will Be Honored

Paul Christman, former University of Missouri star quarterback, and twice an All-American, will be the principal speaker at the Sedalia Optimist Club noonday meeting, Tuesday, at the Bothwell hotel. Christman, on behalf of the local club, will present each Smith-Cotton high school letterman of the 1946 Central Missouri Conference Championship team, a gold football.

Following the line of the Optimist motto, "Friend of the Boy" the club is entertaining the Tiger team, its two coaches, Ralph "Stub" Dow and assistant "Bob" Rogers. By the fact the team was victorious, undefeated in the Conference, the presentation of the gold footballs is being conducted.

The footballs are of 10-karat gold, have a black letter "S" on one side and on the other side is engraved the player's name. The three boys who were All-Conference players, will have that engraved under their names. They are a duplicate of the balls which are presented by many of the universities to their football letter men.

Also to be present at the luncheon will be the members of the school board, Superintendent of Schools Heber U. Hunt, and Joe Benson, principal of the high school.

On Chicago Team

Christman, who was considered the greatest quarterback in the country, is now on the Chicago Cardinal team playing that position. He is known for his great passing attacks which carried the M. U. Tigers into bowl games.

During the summer vacation he is connected with the Recreational Program in Kansas City, teaching football to the youngsters of that city. They delight in learing the art of passing a football.

He will speak on football and give many of his experiences of the game. He also has a motion picture taken of the games between the Detroit Lions and the Chicago Cardinals, which was one of the most thrilling games played in professional football.

John R. Van Dyne, former University of Missouri player, will introduce the speaker.

Not Getting Enough Enlistments

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18—(AP)—Secretary of War Patterson said tonight that the army's decision on whether to ask for extension of the draft will depend on this month's recruiting figures and he is "not sanguine about the results."

A recommendation will be made early in February.

The secretary, in an interview on NBC's University of the Air broadcast, said his own preference would be an army of volunteers. Draft extension will not be recommended he added, "if we can see any other way of getting the men we need."

"We are not getting" the 37,000 enlistments monthly needed to meet the army's manpower goal of 1,070,000 men for this year, he said.

Financier Heads Red Cross Campaign

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—(AP)—Harvey D. Gibson, New York financier, will head the 1947 Red Cross fund campaign, to be conducted in March.

The American Red Cross, announcing this today, set the goal at $60,000,000.

Gibson, president of the Manufacturers Trust Company, served as campaign chairman last year.

Car Hits Tree

A 1936 Plymouth sedan, driven by Bert Cunningham, Omaha, Neb. was badly damaged about 11:15 o'clock Saturday morning when it crashed into a tree in front of the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest H. Salisbury, 809 West Broadway.

According to the police report, the car was headed east on Broadway, and appeared to have swerved to the right, going over the curb and striking the tree.

Mr. Cunningham was not injured.

Large Amount of Loot Taken

LONDON, Jan. 18.—(AP)—Scotland Yard announced today that $280,000 worth of jewelry, furs and clothing were stolen in London during the first 17 days of 1947.

New Bills Ready For Congress

Sen. Ball, Who Has Introduced Three Bills Already, is Ready With Fourth

By Max Hall

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—(AP)—A new batch of labor bills will spurt into Congress next week as the Senate labor committee opens a many-sided hearing.

Many congressmen are looking to the testimony starting Thursday—and to the house labor committee hearing that may start the following week—to help them form opinions on complex questions.

The senate committee, headed by Senator Taft (R-Ohio), will hear Secretary of Labor Schwellenbach first. Its hearing will take at least five weeks, five days a week.

Many of the same witnesses will testify before the house committee considering a different bunch of bills.

Here are some of the bills yet to be offered—most of them the next week:

1. Senator Ferguson (R-Mich) is nearly ready with his much-discussed bill for a system of labor courts to settle disputes.

2. Rep. Landis (R-Ind) of the house labor committee will introduce Monday a bill designed to prevent industry-wide strikes in essential industries like steel and coal.

Several Restrictions

3. Chairman Hartley (R-NJ) of the house labor committee plans a bill restricting union activities in several ways.

4. Senator James Murray (D-Mont) and other Democrats are working on legislation to carry out President Truman's proposals, including the prohibition of jurisdictional strikes.

5. Senator McCarthy (R-Wis) is nearly ready with his bill to eliminate what he calls certain closed shop "abuses" and make the question of a closed shop shop in each plant depend entirely on whether two-thirds of the employes want it.

6. Senator Ball (R-Minn), who has introduced three bills already, will offer a fourth, to change the Wagner Labor Relations Act.

7. Senator Morse (R-Ore) will introduce a bill to amend the the Wagner Act.

8. Senator Ellender (D-La) will introduce legislation for an independent mediation board and for amending the Wagner Act.

Ball, Morse and Ellender are members of the senate labor committee.

McKinley To Be Honored

The twenty-second annual observance of the birth of William McKinley, martyred president of the United States to be sponsored by Pettis County Republicans will be a dinner meeting to be held in the Ambassador Room of the Hotel Bothwell, January 30, at 6:30 o'clock.

Carl G. Schrader, chairman of the Republican County Committee announces that Hon. Harry Gambrel, presiding judge of the Jackson county court will be the principal speaker.

Mr. Schrader has appointed the following committees to look after arrangements for the dinner:

Ticket: Judge J. V. Kesterson, A. H. Wilks, Samuel L. Highleyman and T. L. Yount. Arrangements: Carl Urban and J. E. Smith.

Roming House Burns, One Dead

CLEVELAND, Jan. 18—(AP)—An aged woman died in the roaring flames of a rooming house fire on the east side today as the Knickerbocker Manor, once a famous Euclid avenue mansion, was demolished. A sharp explosion preceded the flash fire.

A dozen persons were given hospital treatment, and one was in only fair condition. Police had accounted for 22 regular tenants and two known visitors.

Fatally burned was a woman identified tentatively as Mrs. Lillie Somers, 68. She lived on the top floor of the rambling, three-story structure of brick, stone and frame.

Students Not Getting Tuition Grants

OXFORD, England, Jan. 18—(AP)—More than 20 American student-veterans attending Oxford university under the GI bill of rights said today that if quick action to speed their tuition grants was not forthcoming from Washington their deportation from England probably would be inevitable.

Veterans complained that the only responses the various colleges of Oxford had received to demands for tuition fees were showers of elaborate forms. In at least three instances the colleges already have waited more than a year for their fees, one veteran said.

Kansas City Still Without A Newspaper

Strike of Contract Carriers Continues; Meeting Soon

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 18—(AP)—Two Commissioners of the U. S. Conciliation Service announced tonight that negotiations would start tomorrow afternoon toward settlement of a strike of contract carriers that has blocked publication of the Kansas City Star and Times the past two days.

The commissioners, Robert H. Moore and Irving Pickett, said the Star management and the union had agreed to meet at 2:30 tomorrow afternoon in the local office of the U. S. Conciliation Service.

They said Earl McCollum, president of the Star company, and Charles Bond of St. Louis, special representative of the International Pressmen and Assistants (AFL) would attend the session. Four or five other representatives of the management and union were scheduled to acocmpany them.

Meanwhile, the contract carriers continued to picket the Star in their bid for recognition of their union as a bargaining agent. Printers, stereotypers and pressmen refused to cross the line, blocking publication of the Sunday morning Star.

Broadcasting News

Earl McCollum, president of the Star company, said that the newspaper considered the carriers independent contractors rather than employes and that position "has been sustained by the supreme court of Missouri and by federal taxing authorities."

The Star company, which publishes Kansas City's only afternoon and morning newspapers, supplemented regular newscasts over its radio station WDAF with reports gathered by its editorial staff in an effort to bridge the news gap for its readers. Daily newspapers were published both at Kansas City, Kas., and nearby Independence, Mo., but these newspapers are not circulated generally in the Kansas City, Mo., area proper which includes about 750,000 persons.

Seven-Year-Old Boy is Drowned

STERLING, Kas., Jan. 18—(AP)—A seven year old boy broke through thin ice of Sterling lake and drowned in 20 feet of water Saturday afternoon. He was Pat Kannard, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Kannard, Sterling.

The boy was crossing the ice covered lake with an older brother when the ice crumpled. An hour and a half search by divers failed to locate his body which finally was brought to the surface by a fishing rod line cast by Earl Higley. Artificial respiration failed to revive the boy. The brother scrambled to safety.

Medical Society To Have Guest Speaker

The Pettis County Medical Society will have a dinner meeting Monday night at 6:30 o'clock in the Ambassador room of the Bothwell hotel.

Following the dinner an address will be given by Dr. Frederic Sugarbaker of the Fischell Cancer hospital in Columbia. Dr. Sugarbaker will speak on the subject: "Treatment of Cancer, Surgical and Medical."

A full attendance of the Pettis County Medical Society is expected as well as a number of physicians from other places.

Asks Freedom On One Charge

JEFFERSON CITY, Jan. 18—(AP)—Bert Ivan Grim, 27, serving sentences of 20 years for armed robbery and six years for kidnaping, asked the Missouri supreme court today for freedom from his first conviction because, he said, he had not been allowed legal counsel in Buchanan county.

The court took the petition under advisement.

Grim told the high court ,sitting en banc, that the robbery conviction in 1943 by a Buchanan county jury was in error because the late Circuit Judge Maurice Hoffman did not provide legal advice for him.

Merely Offered Record

The state merely offered the record of the circuit court trial.

The evening of October 31, 1945, Grim and Claud McGee, serving life in the state penitentiary for a Mississippi county murder, escaped the prison.

A little later a Jefferson City insurance man, Paul Harris, was kidnaped. Harris was left bound and gagged in an abandoned barn west of Sedalia, Mo. The men escaped with Harris' car and later eluded a police net in St. Joseph.

Harris freed himself and was returned to his home here. McGee and Grim were returned from Trenton, Tenn., and a Cole county jury found them guilty of kidnaping.

Thieves Take Over

TULSA, Okla., Jan. 18—(AP)—Thieves got the lead out at the Bearden Plumbing Company. Proprietor J. F. Bearden reported to police burglars early today loaded one of the company's truck with nearly three tons of the scarce material and drove off with the lead, truck and $5 from the cash drawer.

Cat Knocks Lights Out

SAND SPRINGS, Okla., Jan. 18—(AP)—A prowling cat today got mixed up in the high lines of the 33,000 volt substation of the Sand Springs Power and Light Company and knocked out the city's lights for a brief period.

Power official J. C. Happenny said contact with the electric lines stripped the black cat like a skunk and wiped out all its nine lives. Lights went on 18 minutes later when attendants switched to another circuit.

Sedalia Store is Shipping Bed And Other Articles to Japan

Sleeping on floor mats at Japanese hotels and staying in service clubs will soon be over for Lieut. Robert Grishkat when a full sized hollywood bed arrives at Shizuoka, Japan, where he is stationed with a military government team.

The bed was purchased Friday by his wife at the Finance Outlet Furniture Company 214 West Main Street, and will be shipped along with other household goods to Lieut. Grishkat by the army.

Mrs. Grishkat is living with his mother, Mrs. A. O. Grishkat, 701 South Engineer avenue, while waiting for her orders to leave for Japan to join her husband. The army will furnish transportation for her.

Scarcity Of Necessities

Lieut. Grishkat, who has written and asked for several household articles, states that there is a scarcity of many of the necessities of life in Japan. Among other things, he asked for rat traps.

The army is building model housing units for the men and their families stationed in Japan. A home has already been prepared for Lieut. Grishkat and his wife and is partially furnished but Mrs. Grishkat is taking no chances and will ship quite a few items which she thinks they will need in setting up their new home.

Richard M. Battles, owner and manager of the Finance Outlet Furniture Company says that to his knowledge this is undoubtedly the furtherest distance that any article purchased in his store will travel.

GOP Want To See Savings

Will Call Upon Army and Navy to Show Where Merger Plan Will Trim Costs

By Francis M. Le May

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—(AP)—Republicans bent on whittling down President Truman's $37,500,000,000 budget desclosed today they will call upon the army and navy for a showing of money savings in the plan for unification of the armed forces.

Brushing aside arguments by some Republicans and Democrats that the $11,587,000,000 outlay for national defense in fiscal 1948 should not be touched, Chairman Taber (R.-N. Y.) of the house appropriations committee declared to reporters

"There is going to be a thorough overhauling of army and navy spending estimates. We are going to ask what for and why on each item.

"There is no question but spending should be trimmed under the merger plan, unless its just another New Deal reorganization just superimposing an extra overhead. They are going to show us where we can save. If they don't we will show them."

No Estimates

Army and navy officers who discussed the unification plan with reporters at the White House yesterday said there had been no estimates on possible savings. Nor did President Truman's budget estimate take into account such a result.

Mr. Truman wrote house and senate leaders today that he will submit unification legislation soon; it will be drafted by representatives of the White House and war and navy departments.

Other fast moving developments on the money-taxes front included:

1. The joint house-senate budget committee of 102 members, created under the congressional reorganization act, was called to its first session on Monday. It is ready to begin studies of the President's budget estimates with a view to congress putting its own ceiling on government spending.

Congress Approves

2. Mr. Truman moved to recapture some $536,000,000 of unspent appropriations and remove from the books some $800,000,000 in old lend-lease funds. He got a quick nod of assent from congress.

3. Republicans plan to press through the house on Monday legislation, asked by the President, to freeze the excise taxes indefinitely at their high wartime rates—on liquors, furs, jewelry and many other goods and services.

4. Prospects for a 20 percent slash in individual income taxes this year faded. There still appeared to be enough votes to pass a bill granting some tax relief with the principal easement on lower incomes.

Solve Bank Robberies

JOPLIN, Mo., Jan. 18—(AP)—With a third arrest here today as an anti-climax, following apprehension of the two confessed principals Friday, FBI agents concluded their investigation of the Sarcoxie and Diamond bank robberies January 7 and set the case down as solved.

The two holdups which yielded $5,461 loot were charged to two first offender amateurs, Burl Martin Evans, 23, former GI of Monett, Mo., and Jack Peavler, 14, also of Monett, termed by the FBI the youngest bank robber in America.

Also in custody, arrested here this afternoon, was Dewey Peavler 25, older brother of Jack Peavler, charged with obtaining $400 of the Sarcovie bank loot from his brother, knowing the money to have been stolen.

The corps of special agents who, with the aid of the state highway patrol and police officials had been investigating the bank robberies for 11 days, left tonight for Kansas City where they said the case will be presented next week to a federal grand jury through the district attorney's office.

Chillicothe Firemen Have Difficulties

CHILLICOTHE, Mo. Jan. 18—(AP)—The City Council's decision to spend $10,000 to replace a 27-years-old fire truck was vindicated this week when the truck broke down twice on the way to answer an alarm.

Each time the chain of the chain drive came off and fell into the street. Each time the truck stopped and firemen had to crawl under it to replace the chain.

Fortunately, the blaze was only a minor roof fire and was reached in time to be extinguished with small damage to the house.

Chillicothe will have two modern machines when the new truck arrives.

12-Year-Old Boy is Shown City in Style

Springfield, Ill., Junior C. of C. Entertain Him

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Jan. 18—(AP) — The Springfield Junior Chamber of Commerce today satisfied the curiosity of 12-year old Jerry Eshing of St. Louis.

Jerry wrote a letter to the Chamber several weeks ago, telling of a Springfield visit he planned. He asked for literature so he could "see some important places and things." The Chamber was so impressed it immediately made plans for a special welcome.

Met at his train by a Chamber delegation and escorted around the Illinois capital city on a tour of historical sites, Jerry said on his departure he'd like to come back next week and bring his entire seventh grade class with him. Today he made the 100-mile trip by himself.

Nelson Howarth, president of the Junior Chamber, said the group planned to bring Jimmy's classmates by chartered bus to Springfield and take them to nearby New Salem, village where Abraham Lincoln lived for six years and now restored by the state to its appearance during Lincoln's time there.

Fast-Moving Tour

Jerry was escorted today in a fast-moving tour to Lincoln's tomb, the capitol building and Lincoln's home.

Wearing cowboy boots "because they're comfortable," Jerry was impressed when he was shown the original manuscript of the song "America," preserved at Lincoln's tomb. He sang the first verse "directly from the copy."

Tired and excited, he got on the train for the return trip and said he figured it would take him "more than an hour to tell my folks about this."

"Gosh," he remarked, "this is once in a life time this would happen to me."

One Killed And Eight Injured

PIKEVILLE, Ky., Jan. 18—(AP)—One man was killed and eight others injured, two seriously, in accidents at three eastern Kentucky coal mines today.

Ted Belcher, 45, of nearby Praise, died in Methodist hospital of back injuries received in a slate fall at the Praise operation of the Marino Coal Co.

The eight were hospitalized following separate early morning explosions occurring four hours apart in the Pike-Elkhorn Coal Co. mine at Tram in nearby Floyd county and at the Williams-Belcher mine three miles north of here.

State Mines Inspector Harry Thomas said the accident at Tram was "due directly to the carelessness of two men handling explosives."

Close USO Camp Shows in Europe

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—(AP)—The curtain has fallen on the last USO camp show for GIs in Europe.

The army announced today that 221 performers, the last group in the European theater, are due to arrive by steamer at New York on Tuesday. The players made up 14 touring companies.

During the peak year of 1945, USO shows in the Eureopean theater were attended by 53,353,000 soldiers.

The army said that the camp shows will continue to play in the Pacific area "for an indefinite period," as well as at army and veteran hospitals in this country.

Two Divorce Petitions Name Same Man

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Jan. 18—(AP)—For the second time in two weeks Deputy Sheriff Lowell Nash today served divorce papers on John Conti, a prisoner in the county jail where he is serving a short federal sentence for impersonating an army officer.

First, Mary Lou Conti brought suit. Today, Winnie Thelma Conti was the plaintiff. The papers in that suit had been filed in Kansas City.

Nash said that Conti told him he could not understand the latter suit as he had not been married to anyone by that name.

Conti is scheduled to be freed next Tuesday.

Thompson Acting Governor

Arnall Resigns; Talmadge Will Be Asked to Surrender Office and Mansion

Atlanta, Jan. 18.—(AP)—Herman Talmadge said today that if Georgia courts hold that he is not entitled to the governorship to which the legislature elected him, he will abide by the decision.

He reiterated, however, his contention "that the courts do not have jurisdiction" over the controversy which has resulted in three rival claims to the executive office in the past five days.

Talmadge's statement followed the swearing in today of M. E. Thompson as lieutenant governor and Thompson's subsequent announcement that he considered himself acting governor of Georgia.

Talmadge, previously charged by Arnall with planning to disregard any action of the courts in the contest, said in tonight's statement that he did not believe the courts would "attempt to rule when they have looked into the suit I am informed Mr. M. E. Thompson will file."

"There are three branches of the government," he continued, "as everyone knows, and under our constitution the duty of electing the governor and the methods therefore are given entirely to the legislative branch. x x x

Will Abide By Decision

"That is why I have consistently maintained that the courts do not have jurisdiction. But, should I be wrong, I will of course abide by the court's decision, as would any other law-abiding citizen of the state."

Thompson had said earlier he would demand that Talmadge surrender the governor's offices at the capitol and the executive mansion.

Talmadge, elected by the legislature in the early hours of Wednesday morning after a tumultuous 16-hour session, took physical possession of the capitol and mansion Thursday after ousting Arnall. The retiring governor who rejected Talmadge as "that pretender" and accused him of seizing the government with "storm troopers, thugs and ruffians," later set up temporary executive offices in a downtown office building.

Lt. Gov. M. E. Thompson

Thompson, former educator and doctory of philosophy, took his oath of office at 10:50 a. m. in the almost deserted senate chamber. Immediately afterward, Arnall announced that his conditional resignation, filed previously with the secretary of state, had become effective.

Meets Talmadge Monday

Thompson said he would confront Talmadge Monday in the executive office and demand that he surrender the governorship. "If I do not see him then," continued Thompson (Monday is Robert E. Lee's birthday and a legal holiday in Georgia) "I will see him Tuesday, and if not then, then at the earliest possible opportunity."

Asked at a press conference if he could evict the rival governor, Thompson replied: "Just yet I don't have a strong military at my back, but I shall follow up my demand."

Thompson said until he was granted access to the executive offices, he would occupy offices of the senate president, just off the senate chamber. There was no indication if Talmadge would attempt to eject Thompson.

Litigation Underway

Thompson said his first official act was to direct the attorney general to continue suit to enjoin Talmadge from exercising authority of governor. The litigation was filed originally in the name of Arnall, as governor.

At the same time, Thompson announced appointment of Arnall's former law partner, Stonewall Dyer of Newman, as state revenue commissioner, and W. R. Neal of Atlanta as director of the state highway department. Dyer will challenge Talmadge-appoint-

Nursemaid to a Zoo

Mrs. Martini Runs a Unique Nursery for Wild Animals

By Bert Brandt
NEA Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK, (NEA)—Lightning stabbed through the night and momentarily lighted the cages in the darkened lion house of the Bronx Zoo.

The thunder that followed sent three tiny tiger cubs scurrying into a corner for mutual protection, from the awesome sounds they'd never heard before. Fear shone in their eyes as they began instinctively to hiss, then whimper.

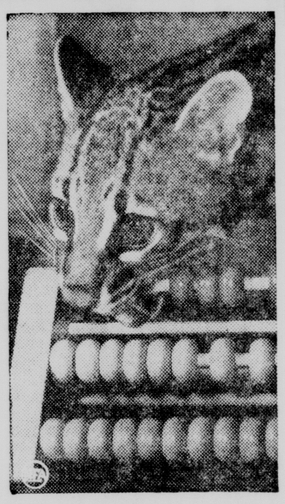

A key turned in the barred door and a woman's figure, cloaked against the storm, slipped quietly into the cage and gathered the frightened cubs into her arms. The whimpering stopped and in a few minutes they were purring like kittens.

Mrs. Helen Martini took off her coat, made herself comfortable as the floor of a tiger cage would permit, and rode out the storm with her three tiny charges cuddled on her lap.

This was the dramatic beginning a few years ago, of the wild animal nursery at New York's Bronx Zoo, only nursery of its kind in the country. When a Royal Bengal Tigress gave birth to three cubs in 1944, Mrs. Martini, who had successfully raised a lion cub two years before, got the nursery job and put it on a permanent basis.

No newcomer to the animal business, Mrs. Martini is the wife of one of the zoo keepers and is herself a keeper of the birds. She finds her baby animal kingdom a round-the-clock job.

The tiger cubs, her first charges, had to be fed every three hours, and in order to get any sleep herself she took them home with her at night. When the cubs began growing, the neighbors began complaining, and while Mrs. Martini couldn't see anything wrong about three 300-pound tigers coming home for dinner, she finally had to leave them at the zoo.

Take a number: This young oscelot, a member of Mrs Martini's nursery class, chews thoughtfully on a toy abacus while figuring how long it is until suppertime.

Besides the universal nursery know-how of heating a bottle of milk, Mrs. Martini had to learn a variety of animal menus, including mealworms, peanuts, dehydrated peaches, sunflower seeds, to say nothing of bananas, meat and fish.

Million Dollar Question Before 80th Congress

By Robert E. Geier

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18—(AP)—If virtually unlimited funds were made available to the world's greatest medical specialists, could they find a cancer cure as quickly as U. S. scientists produced an atomic bomb?

That $100,000,000 question, placed before the 79th congress, is now before the 80th. Senator Pepper (D-Fla) has introduced his bill which failed of approval in the 79th—to make that sum available for cancer research.

Dr. Roscoe R. Spencer, head of the National Cancer Institute, and other cancer authorities are convinced millions of Americans can be saved from cancer deaths if more money is made available to educate the public about cancer and expand treatment facilities as well as research.

Should Have Examinations

If all of the 17,000,000 living Americans who are doomed to die from cancer (if the present death rate is unchanged) could be given proper examinations, authorities estimate "we could save with existing methods at least one third."

Many medical authorities agree that cancer is medical public enemy No. 1 in the United States and that, barring a near medical miracle it is far from being solved. They say the battle requires the mobilization of scientists in a variety of research projects so fundamental that they may involve the secret of the origin of life itself.

The U. S. Public Health Service supported objectives of the $100,000,000 Pepper-Neeley bill in the 79th congress to bring together the world's cancer experts and "coordinate and utilize their services in a supreme endeavor to discover means of curing and preventing cancer." It now has laid down this policy:

More Federal Action

1. Federal action on a scale much larger than heretofore is "greatly and urgently needed."

2. Increased federal support is necessary "not only for research into the cause and means of control of cancer but also for assisting states and local communities in applying more effectively the knowledge that already has been acquired."

3. This stepped-up program, regardless of its magnitude, should be placed under jurisdiction of the Public Health Service rather than a new organization that might be created outside government.

These policies were made by the National Advisory Cancer Council of the National Cancer Institute for Dr. Thomas Parran, surgeon general of the health service.

They fit into the administration policy, enunciated by President Truman, of placing emphasis on public health work and especially upon a solution of the cancer puzzle.

More Than Money Involved

But Dr. Parran says more than money is involved.

"Besides more funds, we need more well trained research personnel and, most important of all, we need the spark of brilliance in research," he says.

"Money won't buy this, overnight, but it takes money to train the personnel that we need."

The Cancer Institute's appropriation for the current year is $1,772,000. Research grants are also given to universities, hospitals and research institutions.

Cancer research at the institute is confined to small animals, mostly mice, at present. Public Health Service officials feel a hospital is needed to provide a means of studying the disease in human beings. The research staff agrees this is imperative.

The 79th congress made $2,500,000 available through the Public Health Service's grant-in-aid programs.

Outlook Encouraging

"Actually the outlook for cancer research and control in the United States looks more encouraging today than it has at any time," says Dr. Parran.

"But up to now our sights have been set too low. The National Cancer Institute in the near future should have a modern cancer research hospital and greatly expand laboratory facilities.

"Much larger grants assured over a long period should be available to develop many other research centers and to support isolated projects as well."

Dr. Parran and his staff at the Cancer Institute believe that in time the secrets of cancer can be discovered if enough scientific brains huddle over the problem, as they did over the atomic project.

"The cancer problem today and the atomic bomb situation in 1941 are quite dissimilar" says Dr. Parran.

May Open New Avenues

"For instance, in 1941, the fundamental knowledge regarding atomic fisson was much more complete than is our current knowledge of cancer prevention.

"The cost of fabricating an atomic bomb was huge, yet the total cost of the fundamental research, of Einstein, of Rutherford, of Bohr, of Fermi and others was very small and was not incurred with this specific object in view. Quite the contrary, they were pursuing basic knowledge for its own sake

"Intensified studies, broadly based to find the cause and cure of cancer probably will be most fruitful if directed towards the fundamental problems of cellular life, the interaction of groups of cells and organ systems in this most complicated of all chemical structures, man himself."

And this may open avenues leading to the solution of many diseases—possibly the secret of life.

That's the answer to the $100,000,000 question.

Repeal Is Asked On Millions

Unspent Funds In Huge Amounts Might Be Turned Back Taber Says

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18 (AP)—President Truman asked Congress Friday to repeal appropriations of $563,888,579, including $132,000,000 of spending authorizations.

Announcement of his request followed by several days a demand from Chairman Taber (R-NY) of the house appropriations committee for a detailed report on the current status of all appropriations for the fiscal year ending June 30.

Taber said he believed "untold millions" could be recaptured from unspent funds.

A White House statement said the $563,888,579 figure was in addition to five previous recommendations for reductions in appropriations made but found not to be needed. It said these others, which included great slashes in army and navy appropriations, reduced the net authorized federal program by more than $64,000,000,000.

This includes vast army and navy rescissions orginally based on continuing the war.

Meanwhile Taber told a reporter tonight that the rescissions "help a bit but they are not anywhere near enough."

"The President's action," the statement said, "is in accord with objectives expressed by the congress—to maintain a continuous review of unrequired appropriation balances with a view to their recovery."

The main saving he asked is $325,000,000 which was made available to the maritime commission and is not now required because of the liquidation of wartime ship building programs.

Also involved is the $132,000,000 contractual authority given the commission as well as the appropriations.

Return On Navy Items

Four navy items account for the return of $119,000,000, including $50,000,000 not needed to meet contract termination costs, $50,000,000 of war department funds advanced to the navy for purchase of aircraft materiel and ordnance, $15,000,000 for public works, and $4,000,000 for emergency ship facilities no longer required.

Mr. Truman also asked that $40,000,000 be trimmed from funds for the atomic energy commission, which the commission reported will not be needed in the fiscal year expiring June 30.

War department savings recommended totalled $33,500,000. Of this, $17,500,000 had been intended for construction of buildings and utilities and equipment purchases, $15,000,000 represented a net gain to the government in interest on guaranteed loans to war contractors, and most of the balance was earmarked for defense housing, seacoast defenses and similar items.

He asked that $10,000,000 be cut from treasury department appropriations as not now usable for acquisition of vessels and shore facilities by the coast guard.

Slash Emergency Fund

The President cut in half the five million dollar emergency fund appropriated for his own use. It was said his recommendations for savings were taken into account in estimating expenditures in the 1948 budget, which he recently estimated at $200,000,000 less than anticipated income.

The President said that he is ordering returned to the treasury unneeded lend lease funds, not available for obligation after June 30, 1946. He said approximately $805,000,000 of the unexpended balance of these appropriations is being withdrawn from various agencies and carried to the surplus fund of the treasury.

In addition, he reported there is being deposited in the treasury approximately $114,000,000 of funds received from foreign governments under reverse lend lease.

In Tunnels Of Little America

Buildings Found Under Glacier Snow And Ice

By Alton L. Blakeslee

WITH NAVY EXPEDITION AT BAY OF WALES, Jan. 18—(Delayed)—(AP)—I dropped through a skylight Thursday into the subzero buildings and tunnels of Little America, completely buried under 20 feet of snow where everything was perfectly preserved and untouched since the camp was abandoned six years ago.

Eleven men in our scouting party came to the old camp of the 1939-1941 expedition and for three of them, this was a gleeful homecoming. By light of a flashlight and lanterns, they shouted their discoveries of old bunks and forgotten supplies in the camp they left on Feb. 1941.

No one had set foot inside the buildings and interconnecting tunnels since then until today when we pierced through the snow cover. The buildings are now completely buried in glacier snow and ice. We couldn't stay long inside where temperature was below zero, possibly ten to twenty degrees below while on top of the camp it is perhaps only twenty five degrees even with the wind blowing.

I had lunch inside consisting of a seven-year-old graham cracker.

Icicles From Ceilings

Icicles of beautiful crystallized design hung from the ceilings. The narrow tunnels are jumbled with huge stores food, pails, dynamite, nails and junk. We found a couple of chickens and hams well frozen and in the galley there were steaks already cut, waiting only to be grilled when thirty men abandoned camp after spending 13 months there.

In rooms each with a potbellied stove there are notes scribbled on the bare wood walls, a poster advertising the movie "Love Affair" starring Irene Dunn, and Charles Boyer. Cans of peaches, socks hanging from rafters, a big box of candy, cans of graham crackers, and memories which thrilled three veterans, Dr. Paul Siple, Erie, Pa., who commanded the base, Lieut. Cmdr. James C. McCoy, Dunn, N. C. and Captain Vernon D. Boyd Arlington, Va.

I brought to the surface a Tuesday Dec. 3, 1940 issue of the Daily Oklahoman, with news of Greek victories over Italians.

The paper was still as fresh and white as the da, it was printed.

The Chesterfield of birds is the great blue heron. To his middle claw is attached a small comb. with which to preen his feathers.

The grebe is a bird contortionist. It lifts its legs out of the water, shakes the moisture from them, then folds them over the back, under its wings.

Would Save First Hot Dog House

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 18—(AP)—The All-American hot dog will be called upon to rescue the house where it was originated.

Civic leaders and the national park service are discussing plans to raise funds to purchase the Jean Baptiste Roy home which was built 117 years ago in south St. Louis and is the city's oldest dwelling.

Money would be raised through donations dropped in boxes by sports fans when they purchased hot dogs.

The brick house was once a sausage shop operated by William Tamme and John Doepple. An ingenious salesman decided to sell sausages between halves of a buttered bun and thus the hot dog was introduced to the American scene. The sausage shop operated from 1870 to the early 1900's.

Wreckers are scheduled to begin demolishing the house in two weeks unless the present real estate dealer owner will sell it for movement to a city park site.

Story Myth On Vanishing Killer

NEW YORK, Jan. 18—(AP)—The vanishing slayer of a six-month-old baby Friday turned out to be a myth—fabricated, authorities said, by a frenzied father who dropped the child accidentally and was afraid to admit it to his wife.

The father, Frederick Schuchman, who rushed his dead daughter to a hospital last night, admitted, police said, that he was so horrified he had dreamed up a story of an intruder, even cutting himself with a razor blade to back up the tale.

Schuchman, whose wife had gone to the movies, first told police he had gone out to buy cigarettes and returning found a tall, blond man leaving the apartment. He said the man stabbed him during a struggle, and he later found the baby injured.

Actress-Press Agent Job Just Homework for Jane

Jane Newton: "Sex appeal is wonderful . . . but it isn't necessary."

By Patt Watts
NEA Staff Correspondent

LOS ANGELES, (NEA)—Petite Jane Newton, a co-ed at the University of California at Los Angeles, "crashed" the movies while she was trying to get her homework done.

And she doesn't want to be an actress.

A psychology major at the university, Miss Newton is writing a paper on the "Effectiveness of Motion Picture Publicity" in order to get her master's degree. She wanted to make the research very complete, and so she visited Producer Robert Riskin, who has been a Hollywood executive for many years.

Riskin decided that Janie was seeking the information that he would like to have—information that would help him in planning publicity campaigns. So he gave her a part in a new picture. In order to test the effectiveness of movie publicity. Janie is acting as her own press agent.

She had her first press conference the other day. Seated on a desk with her legs crossed the way any veteran actress would do, she answered questions in a candid fashion, and smiled for the constant flashes of the cameras.

Miss Newton has some original ideas on publicity. She doesn't like "cheesecake" pictures—which are the leg-revealing shots which most publicity agents deem a "must for an actress.

"I'm not sure leg art is necessary. I'm not even sure it is nice," she said. But she was willing to have the "cheesecake" pictures taken. All for the sake of her homework, of course.

"Portrait shots, and informal pictures showing people doing the things they like to do are the pictures that I always look at in a newspaper," she said, passing up the leg-revealing poses.

When asked if she thought that leg art makes a picture popular, she said, "Sex appeal is wonderful. I'm all for it. But it isn't necessary. Especially for publicity pictures.

Hollywood probably never thought one of its "publicity agents" would ever say a thing like that.

She's very tight-lipped about the results of her publicity so far, and she won't reveal her plans for publicizing herself. Maybe she's afraid someone else will write a school paper on the same subject. "I'm very anxious to get a good mark on my research," she said.

Thompson Acting Governor

ed Charles Redwine of Fayetteville, and Neal will take office in conflict with James L. Gillis of Soperton, both confirmed by the senate last Friday.

Thompson also announced a complete, new, 12-man highway board, which he said had already accepted appointment. The acting governor said Phillip Landrum of Gainesville would be his executive secretary. Talmadge appointed Benton Odum, of Newton, Ga., to the same position.

Arnall Turns Funds Over

Arnall disclosed he had turned over to Thompson approximately $100,000 in executive department funds, previously in his care. Thompson said he would dispose of the money "in due course, in conformity with the constitution and the courts."

As acting governor, Thompson would serve until the next general election in November, 1948. Talmadge's spokesmen have declared he intends to serve the full four-year term of his father.

Both men are pledged to the "white supremacy" program of the late Eugene Talmadge, which was adopted as the platform of the Georgia Democratic party in convention last October. This includes restoration of Georgia's unique county-unit system of voting, and expansion of state services.

To Again Take Oath

In reply to a news conference question, Thompson said he would not hesitate to call for federal intervention if it became necessary, but he emphasized "I do not think that will be necessary."

Thompson said he would again take the oath "as lieutenant-governor and as acting-governor" when the senate convenes at 11 a. m. Monday.

Find Liquor In Kansas

LEAVENWORTH, Kas., Jan. 18—(AP)—County and city officers in a series of raids last night confiscated nearly 200 gallons of liquor.

The officers raided two places in the county near the city limits and four places in downtown Leavenworth. At three of the downtown taverns and in one county place the officers reported they failed to uncover any liquor.

Members of the raiding party included Sheriff Leonard S. Turner, Under-Sheriff Herb Nye, Deputy Sheriffs William Edmonds and William Studdard, Police Chief Roy Murray and City Detectives A. C. Mistler, Arthur Bower and Byrd.

Charges of possession of intoxicating liquor and maintaining a nuisance at their places of business were brought against two of the tavern owners. At their arraignment today they posted $500 bonds each and their preliminary hearings were set for Jan. 27.

Question Two In California Slaying Case

Police Detain Cowboy For Questioning

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 18—(AP)—Two men were taken into custody for questioning today in the butchering slaying of Elizabeth Short, police reported as they pressed the search for a man known as "Red" and "Bob" with whom the pretty, 22-year-old brunette was last seen alive.

Parker, Ariz., officers notified the local homicide detail that a man identified as George Piette, 30, Huntington Beach, Calif., was apprehended in a car containing blood stains and a blood stained woman's coat. Piette, Parker officers reported admitted the car was stolen January 9.

(The victim's horribly mutilated and severed body was found January 15.)

In Mercer, Calif., police were questioning Edward Glen Thorpe, Los Angeles cowboy whose comments regarding the case aroused suspicion of a fellow bus passenger. Police Capt. Malon Stanley said an examination would be made of stains on a jacket found in Thorpe's suitcase.

Bulletin Broadcast

A bulletin was broadcast to all principal western points giving detailed description of the red-haired suspect who, Capt. Jack Donahoe said, is an ex-convict with a long criinal record. Capt. Donahoe said the man is a parolee and served with the Marine Corps during the war.

Los Angeles officers who questioned Dorothy French(a friend of Miss Short, in San Diego, said the slain girl told her that the man known as "Red" and "Bob" was employed by an airline, lived in Huntington Park, Calif., and recently worked in San Diego.

Authorities said their investigation indicated that Miss Short and "Red" met last December 16, and that she left January 8 in an automobile with a man whose auto had a Huntington Park sticker on the windshield.

The mother of Miss Short flew here today from Boston to give police what assistance she could in the hunt for the girl's fiendish slayer.

Mrs. Phoebe Mae Short, the mother, stopped here for 55 minutes before boarding a plane for Berkeley, Calif., where she will bring another daughter, Mrs. Virginia West, to be with her at the inquest.

Mrs. Short told newsmen that Elizabeth left home when she was a high school sophomore "to venture on her own."

Wanted To Be an Actress

"She was a good girl; she wrote often, at least once a week," Mrs. Short said. "She always wanted to be an actress. She was ambitious and beautiful and full of life, but she had her moments of despondency. Sometimes she would be gay and carefree, then in the depths of despair."

Los Angeles police said that a check of possessions of the slain girl, found in her trunk, indicated she had been married to an army major named Matt Gordon, who was killed in a plane crash.

Mrs. Short and her husband, Cleo Short, separated 16 years ago and Mrs. Short made a home for her five daughters. She said she did not intend to talk to Short, and he said he wished to "keep out of this whole thing." He said he had not seen Elizabeth since they parted four years ago "because she would not stay home."

War Dads Oppose Entry at This Particular Time

A special meeting of the War Dads of Pettis County Chapter 31 was held Saturday night at 8 o'clock in the county court room at the court house. E. W. Schultz, president, presided.

This meeting was held at the request of the main office in Kansas City with the purpose of discussing a resolution put forth by the Linwood Chapter of War Dads in Kansas City concerning the question of whether to permit the immigration of 100,000 aliens in Europe now waiting to come to the United States, and if the government should grant naturalization papers to 88 former enemy scientists now working for the government at Wright Field, O.

Judge J. V. Kesterson, a War Dad, gave a talk on the subject in which he stated that "any action taken by the United States government to prohibit the entrance into this country of aliens who bore arms against our forces or in any way whatsoever assisted enemy governments in the recent war would be justified in the eyes of the American people."

Resolution Endorsed

Judge Kesterson concluded by saying "I feel that the War Dad and War Mothers have a indisputable right to petition the government for such an action.

Several other members commented on the situation. Many gave the opinion that in view of the fact that we are unable to provide sufficient housing and other facilities for returned veterans, the government should not allow the entry of aliens into the country, especially at this time.

A motion was made to endorse and adopt the resolution made by the Linwood chapter and seconded. It was accepted unanimously by the members.

It was announced that the state council meeting will be held in Sedalia at the Bothwell hotel February 15 and 16.

Mother of Four Is Strangled

WILDWOOD, N. J., Jan. 18—(AP)—An attractive 28-year-old mother of four children was stangled today in an automobile on lonely King Munny trail near here, and her husband was held for questioning after he drove with the body to an undertaking establishment, state police corporal John Killeen reported.

Killeen said Kenneth Matlack, Cape May courthouse undertaker, told police that Ernest H. Corson, Jr., 29, of 13 West Bate Ave., Wildwood Villas, had driven to his funeral home with Mrs. Eleanor Alice Corson, his wife, slumped on the door and said "I've got a job for you."

The undertaker summoned Dr. Millar Cryder, who pronounced Mrs. Corson dead when resuscitation efforts failed. County physician Maurice B. Cohen said Mrs. Corson died of strangulation.

Otterville PTA Has 'Fathers' Night'

The Otterville Parent-Teachers Association met at the high school, January 13.

Mrs. Lester Young, president, presided at the business meeting.

The program was in honor of Father's Night. Mr. Kay, high school instructor, talked on "The Composition of a Boy." A musical number was presented by Thelma Homan, Shirley Bishop and Billy Ann Gochenour.

The next meeting will be February 4.

Large Glass Broken

A large plate glass in the front dor of the Walker's Clothing Store, 109 West Main street, was knocked out, about midnight Saturday when someone fell against a penny scale and knocked it over against the glass.

Giving Them Fritz

Florida—and New York—racing would not be complete without the grand old man of the turf, Sunny Jim Fitzsimmons. Steward at Coral Gables' Tropical Park when not handling Belair Stud and other horses, famous trainer is shown with Kerry, a two-year-old he believes will win some races.

Display of Books Given As Memorial

The Sedalia public library has on display a number of books presented to the library as a memorial to Duard T. Thomas, son of the Rev. and Mrs. Elmer L. Thomas, of Butler. Duard was reared in Sedalia, attended the Fifth street Methodist church, Smith-Cotton high school from which he was graduated in 1934. He then attended Drury college, Springfield and Central college, Fayette.

In March, 1940, he received an injury which resulted in paralysis. After five years and four months in bed he died January 18, 1946, at the age of 29.

Several friends conceived the idea of presenting books to the library in his name, as a memorial, and it is these books which are on display. Among them are such books as:

List Includes

Christ and Human Suffering, E. Stanley Jones; A Great Time to Be Alive, Harry Emerson Fosdick; The Church and the Returning Soldier, Roy A. Assembly At Sacred Heart

An assembly was held at Sacred Heart high school Friday afternoon to celebrate the opening of the Church Unity Octave, which lasts from January 18 to the 25.

The World History class presented a program, dealing with the history and origin of the Church Unity Octave, the aims of the church, and short summaries of the other different religions.

During the Unity Octave prayers are offered up for special intentions of the Octave.

On the program were: Claude Boul, Rene Bohon, John Handley, Mary Ann Kuhlman, Gertrude Seifner, Willis Arnold, Jerry Labus.

At the end of the assembly the entire group sang the Church Unity Octave Hymn.

Hot Lunches For Children

The Striped College Parent-Teacher Association met January 17 with the vice-president, Mrs. N. E. Seigel, in charge.

The meeting opened with the group singing, "Billy Boy" and "The Little Brown Church in the Vale," with Mrs. Clarence Leiter as accompanist.

Mrs. Martin Schupp gave the secretary and treasurer report.

It was voted to charge each child fifty cents a week for hot lunches, this will include one half pint of Grade A milk which the government requires for every hot lunch room. The milk will be bought from James Hunter.

All joined in singing, "Faith of Our Fathers."

The meeting adjourned with refreshments being served by Mrs. James Hunter, Mrs. W. H. Morman and Mrs. S. G. Monsees.

The next meeting will be held February 7, at which time there will be a Founders Day basket dinner.

High Point Club Meeting

The High Point club met at the home of Mrs. Roy Fender, January 8. The new year books were received and filled out.

Mrs. R. R. Sellers gave a book review. The February meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Henry Lamm.

City of Contrasts

Luxury, Poverty Go Side-by-Side In Lisbon;

It's against the law to go barefoot in Lisbon, but most of these fisherwomen in the slum section of Alfama don't seem to have the word. Those who have shoes usually carry them in their baskets.

By ROSETTE HARGROVE
NEA Staff Correspondent

LISBON, Portugal — (NEA) — The barefoot beggars of Lisbon are on every corner; they follow you into stores and shops with outstretched hands; and they disappear like magic when you fend them off with the words:

"Have patience."

For the poor, the workers and wage-earners alike in Portugal, patience is a necessary virtue. The supporters of President Antonio Salazar call it public tranquility, which they say is preferable to total liberty. But the tranquility is predominant only because the little people have no way of expressing the unrest and discontent they feel.

Of all European capitals, this one, physically untouched by war, offers the sharpest contrasts. You are constantly reminded of the king in the fairy tale who laughed on one side of his face and cried on the other.

There is gayety and bustle and plenty in downtown Lisbon—luxury of merchandise and food that the remainder of Europe has almost forgotten on an out-in-the-open basis.

Side-by-side with this abundance of luxury is an abundance of hunger, not just among the beggars, but among the majority of laborers and small office workers. Their income has gone up 30 to 50 per cent since the war; the cost of food has gone up 100 per cent. The black market, which is everywhere in Europe, here embraces even the lowly staples such as oil, rice, and dried codfish.

TB Rate High

Lack of food rations is one reason that Portugal has the highest percentage of tuberculosis of any European country. Some informed people place the figure as high as 80 per cent, but lack of statistics does not permit either confirmation or refutation of this figure.

There are not enough hospitals, sanitariums or dispensaries in Portugal, despite the many social improvements which Salazar has introduced in his 20-year regime.

But the mumbling of the discontented must be blamed somewhat on the people themselves.

People active in public and private charities point out, for instance, that while the rich Portuguese contribute willingly to all charities—the Winter Relief Fund brought in almost 28 million escudos the year it was launched—they have a hard job making sure that recipients of food and clothing do not immediately turn around and sell these gifts for a bottle of wine or a lottery ticket.

The government says the restrictions it has imposed on its people are really a restraining of impulses.

This restraint is exceedingly strong in the Portuguese press, which dares not raise its voice against the Salazar regime without fear of being silenced altogether, as it was for a time rectnl. There is no outward censorship, but every resident foreign correspondent knows the duration of his stay in Portugal depends on his attitude toward the government.

There is another restriction imposed by decree of Salazar that makes going barefoot illegal. He has had less success with this than with the press, for while the fisherwomen of the Alfama slum section of Lisbon bought clogs, they carry them in the fish baskets and put them on only when a policeman approaches.

Ownership Question Up

A suit to determine the rightful owner of property was filed Saturday morning in the office of the clerk of the circuit court by Delia F. Rodner against Howell M. Baker and the unknown wife, if any, of said Howell M. Baker, if the said Howell M. Baker be living, and if the said Howell M. Baker be dead, his unknown heirs, consorts, devisees, alienees and immediate, mesne, remote voluntary and involuntary grantees, successions and assigns.

Petition states that Howell M. Baker conveyed the title to certain lands owned in the City of Sedalia to E. H. Harris, Jr., trustee, in trust to secure a promissory note of $500.

Later, according to the plaintiff, her late husband, G. B. Rodner, came into possession of the promissory note and for the past several years paid taxes and the upkeep of the property.

Therefore the plaintiff asks that the court bar any one of the possible defendents from asserting any claim or title to the property and to vest the title in the plaintiff.

Montgomery, Martin and Salveter represent the plaintiff.

Cleveland Art Gallery Gives Talent a Break

Algesa Hacker (left) and Mary Manny Brody, directors of Cleveland's "1030 Gallery" who look more like artists' models than art dealers, select a picture to be "hung."

By MARIANNE PACHNER
NEA Staff Correspondent

CLEVELAND, O.—(NEA) Two pretty girls, who look more like artists' models than art entrepreneurs, are responsible for a new kind of art gallery designed to give both artists and public a much needed break.

At Cleveland's community-run, cooperative "1030 Gallery," young unknowns rate a well-promoted one-man "show" on nothing more than talent. The public is invited in to browse, meet the artist and buy a picture at popular prices. The budget-conscious can even purchase what may one day be called a priceless work of art on the instalment plan.

This non-profit project is backed by leading businessmen, industrialists and professional men and is manned by willing volunteers. A bank president, a factory owner, a chain store executive, a civil engineer, a college professor, a museum director and art school head are among its trustees.

Housewives, real estate operators, advertising and newspaper people, socialites, bobby-soxers and the exhibiting artists themselves help to "hang" shows, handle stock, crate pictures, make sales, address envelopes, type notices, sweep, dust, paint, wash windows or whatever else is necessary to keep things going smoothly.

More than 200 promising artists have been introduced to the public since its start two years ago when Nancy Manning and Mary Manning Brody, daughters of widely known artist Wray Manning, hired a bare loft and set to scraping floors, painting walls and hanging pictures themselves. Their aim was two-fold—to give Cleveland artists a regular outlet for their work, and to offer the general public a chance to see, appreciate and buy good originals at prices it could afford.

In June, 1946, the gallery was reorganized on a cooperative basis and moved to larger quarters.

"Too many people have been taking advantage of the artist too long," says Algesa Hacker, a director of the gallery. "Unless he's well known, the usual attitude is that he should be only too glad to get $25 for a piece of work into which he's put a lot of time and effort. We want to establish fair prices."

Must Have Merit

The only requisite for exhibition is that work have merit as art. Each main "show" lasts about a month. Schedules are made up a year ahead of time.

"We have a long list of artists waiting to be 'hung,'" says Mrs. Brody, "and, of course, a lot of would-be artists who can't see why we turn their work down. But our standards are high. We look for a bit of real creative ability and an original approach."

Prices at the gallery have a broad range and are clearly marked on each object. Ceramic ash trys, buttons, etc., may be had for $1. Paintings go up to $750. The artists gets two-thirds of the sales price. The remaining third goes to the gallery for upkeep and operating expenses.

While sales are good, the gallery could not continue without the help of its paying "members." Department stores, newspapers, breweries, advertising houses have contributed upwards of $500 apiece. Five hundred individuals give $10 annually.

Hospitalization Becomes A Law in Saskatchewan

By NEA Service

REGINA, Saskatchewan (NEA)—Hospitalization costs become a worry of the past this year for the 900,000 people in this sprawling Canadian province.

Every man, woman or child in Saskatchewan needing hospital care can be admitted to a hospital simply on recommendation of a doctor and may stay as long as medically required. All costs (except for the added expense of a private room and the physician's or surgeon's own fee) is paid by the government.

Costs to the citizens of the province is $5 a year per person (maximum $30.00 per family). Should income from this special tax fail to cover all costs, the province will make up the difference.

Saskatchewan, a geographical area as large as Wyoming, Utah, and Nevada together, long has found medical care a problem. Its rural areas and scarcity of population have proved economically unattractive to both doctors and to hospitals.

Last April the Saskatchewan legislature passed the Hospitalization Act. Everyone who has lived in the province six months or longer, as of January 1, is eligible under the plan, although the national government continues to be responsible for hospital care of veterans, the Royal Canadian Mounted police, soldiers and some Indian tribes on reservations.

Indigent persons supported by local or the provincial government are entitled to hospital service under the law, with the government contributing their share to the general fund.

The plan, worked out through the cooperation of the medical profession, the hospitals and local governing units, provides for a special Health Services Planning Commission, affiliated with the Saskatchewan Department of Public Health, to administer the law. Local governments register the people in their own areas and collect the tax.

Hospitals, whether government or private, will continue to be managed independently. Rates have been worked out with the hospitals themselves.

The Saskatchewan plan is the first publicly established, complete hospital service on the North American continent.

SSA Asks More Benefits For Its Workers

Call Upon States For Unemployment Insurance in 1947

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—(AP)—The Social Security Administration today called upon the states to provide "more adequate" unemployment insurance in 1947 by extending coverage to more than 11,000,000 new workers and upping maximums on benefits and duration of payments.

In a companion appeal, Arthur J. Altmeyer, commissioner for social security, pointed out that "almost $7,000,000,000 will have been accumulated in state unemployment funds" when most state legislatures meet this year, and added:

"There is general agreement that these funds are sufficient for a more adequate program. There is every reason, therefore, why the states should examine their unemployment insurance programs now and make such changes as are desirable."

As sent to state unemployment insurance agencies, the principal social security recommendations call for:

Extension of Insurance

1. Extension of unemployment insurance coverage to such employes as those in small firms, state and local governments, agriculture, non-profit institutions and domestic jobs.

2. Additional benefits to workers with dependents so that maximum weekly payments, for workers whose past earnings entitle them to it, will be at least $25. S. S. A. said only seven states have this maximum.

3. Allowing payments for as much as 26 weeks for all eligible workers whose unemployment extends for that long. All workers are eligible for this maximum in only one state, the agency said.

4. Relaxation of disqualification provisions so that "voluntary leaving without good cause, discharge for misconduct, or refusal of suitable work should entail merely postponement of benefits for not more than four or five weeks, and not cancellation of benefit rights or reduction of benefits."

Cash Benefits Association

5. Expansion of social insurance protection by providing for a system of cash benefits to individuals when they are sick or temporarily disabled.

6. Definition of good cause for voluntarily leaving or for refusing suitable work to include personal reasons, not merely causes attributable to the job or the employer.

The S. S. A. declared that "consideration should be given to the payment of benefits to persons who have worked in covered employment, and who, upon becoming unemployed, undertake training which will enable the individual to obtain work at a higher skill."

Other recommendations dealt with improvement of administration to "reduce reporting burdens on employers, expedite payments of benefits, increase public understanding and cut administrative expense;" and to adjust the programs "to meet new social and economic factors as they arise."

Benefits to Many

If states adopted the proposal to extend coverage, S. S. A. estimated it would bring unemployment benefits to about 3,400,000 persons in small firms; 2,800,000 state and local government workers; 2,500,000 agricultural workers, and 2,900,000 domestic workers, employes of non-profit institutions and others.

The Agency said the maximum duration or benefits range from 14 to 26 weeks in the individual states, while the maximum payments range from $15 to $25 weekly. A few states allow more for workers with dependents. Minimums range from $3 to $10 weekly, except for Connecticut, where workers with dependents get a $12 minimum, S. S. A. said.

Altmeyer said unemployment benefits paid out during 1946 totaled about $1,092,100,000. Employer contributions amounted to about $907,000,000 and interest earned by the unemployment trust fund amounted to about $129,000,000, for a total income of around $1,036,000,000.

The Social Security Chief estimated that around 4,400,000 different individuals received one or more benefit checks at some time in 1946. This was slightly higher than in 1939, but less than in 1940.

Receives Discharge

T/5 William L. Wallington, son of Mrs. Fred Dillon of Hillside Ranch on South 65, who was recently discharged from the U. S. MR. and Mrs. Clyde E. Tharp, Route 5, Sedalia, announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Betty Jo, to Mr. John R. Stacy, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Stacy, of Warrensburg.

The wedding will take place on Saturday, February 8.

Mrs. Velda Robinson, 1221 South Kentucky avenue, announces the marriage of her daughter, Marvalee Robinson Ellis, to Mr. Kenneth H. Dick, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Dick, 615 West Fifth street, which took place at Sacred Heart church Saturday morning at nine o'clock. The Rev. A. J. Brunswick, C.PP.S., performed the double ring ceremony before the immediate families and close friends.

Mrs. Virginia Lauber, of Saint Louis, was the matron of honor. Mr. William Dick served his brother as best man.

Mrs. Dick wore a gabardine bolero suit, of shadow rose, with an orchid flowered blouse, and a small feathered hat, of orchid. Her accessories were black, and she wore an orchid corsage. She carried a white prayer book.

Mrs. Lauber wore a suit of salt and pepper tweed, and her accessories were yellow and navy. Her corsage was of yellow roses.

During the ceremony, Mrs. Al Miles, accompanied by Mrs. J. J. Comer, at the organ, sang "Ave Maria," by H. Millard, and "Mother Beloved," by Daniel A. Lord, S. J.

Immediately following the ceremony, a wedding breakfast was served to the bridal party, and the families, at the Bothwell hotel.

After a short wedding trip, the couple will be at home at 1409 West Fifth street.

MR. and Mrs. W. C. Wheeler, 7710 South Phillips avenue, Chicago, Ill., announce the engagement of their daughter, Betty Lou, to Mr. Don Everson, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Everson, of Princeton, Ill.

Miss Wheeler, who is the granddaughter of Dr. and Mrs. W. M. Wheeler, 828 West Sixth street, is a graduate of Glenhardm class of 1944, and is studying occupational therapy at the University of Illinois, where she is a junior. Mr. Everson is also a junior at the university, in the school of commerce.

Miss Marlene Rowena Tremmel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Henry Tremmel, was married to Mr. Irving Joseph Dick, at 9 o'clock Saturday morning, January 18, at the St. Paul's church, Highland, Ill.

The bride resided in Sedalia for more than two years at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Neighbors, coming here in 1941. She was employed as an x-ray and laboratory technician in the office of Dr. D. P. Dyer. While here she became a member of the Sedalia Business and Professional Women's club and still holds membership in the local organization.

MISS Alma Lee Gray, daughter of Mr. F. N. Gray, 408 South Washington avenue, and Mr. Herbert B. Boehmer, of Higginsville, Mo., were married at high noon, Saturday, January 18, at the Fifth Street Methodist church, with the pastor, the Rev. H. U. Campbell, reading the single ring service. Attending the wedding were immediate relatives and close friends of the couple.

The bride chose for her wedding, a brown suit with which she wore white accessories. Her corsage was of white roses.

Mrs. Boehmer was born in Cole county and for the past 20 years has resided in Sedalia. She has been employed at Klang's for the past 15 years as saleslady in the millinery department.

Mr. Boehmer owns and operates the D-X service station in Higginsville.

The couple left shortly after the ceremony for a wedding trip in Arkansas.

They will make their home in Higginsville.

Mrs. Rose Adkins entertained at a miscellaneous shower at her home, 307 East Fourth street, Thursday evening, at 7:30 o'clock in honor of her sister, Miss Julia Schuber, who is a bride to be.

There were 32 guests present. During the evening bingo, and other games, were played. Prizes were awarded to Misses May Barber, Mary Frances White, and Elva Dean Bennett, Mrs. Junior Kirkman, and Mrs. Paul Simon.

THE regular monthly meeting of the Osage Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution will be held in the home of Mrs. E. F. Yancey on January 25.

A musical program, in charge of Mrs. Yancey, will be presented and Miss Nettie Lamm will review the D. A. R. magazine.

Hostesses for the day will be Mrs. Yancey, Mrs. W. T. Bishop, Mrs. Harley Vaughan, Mrs. J. E. Golliday, Miss Marian Smith, Mrs. Charles Patterson and Miss Lelia Shortridge.

The weekly Game Day was held at the Sedalia Country club on Thursday of this week. Luncheon was served to the members and after lunch, two tables of bridge and two tables of Mah Jongg were played. Winners at the bridge tables were: Mrs. L. C. Yunker and Mrs. J. O. Latimer; winners at the Mah Jongg tables were: Mrs. Lawrence Barnett and Mrs. Jack McLaughlin.

Miss Betty Jo Tharp, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde E. Tharp, Rt. 5, Sedalia, whose engagement and approaching marriage to Mr. John R. Stacy, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Stacy, of Warrensburg, is announced today by her parents. (Photo by Lehmer)

APPROXIMATELY fifty teen aged couples attended a dance at Convention Hall Friday night. The dance was sponsored by the Senior Student Council of Smith-Cotton high school. It began at 9:30, immediately after the basketball game, and ended at midnight. Music was furnished by a juke box.

Chaperones were: Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Potts, Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Borne and Mr. and Mrs. Lyman Keuper.

A surprise shower was held at the home of Mrs. Morgan Beach, 916 South Moniteau avenue Thursday evening at 7:30 p. m. for Mrs. George Franklin.

Attractive blue, pink, and white crepe paper streamers were draped around the chair of honor leading to a large umbrella also covered with a pink and blue paper. Under the umbrella in front of the chair of honor were many beautiful attractive gifts brought by Mrs. Franklin's friends.

After games were played, Mrs. Franklin opened her gifts.

The dining room table was also attractively decorated. Four intermediate girls served the guests grape punch, individual white cakes with pink rosetta flowers and green leaf frosting, and nut cups. The four girls were Miss Jane Mickens, Miss Dorothy Towner, Miss Betty Bradley, and Miss Jo Ann Merriott.

He returned last week from the St. Louis Apparel Club show, of which club he is also a member.

Book Reviews At Sorosis

Mrs. Thelma Winnberg Cook, a member of the English department at Smith-Cotton high school, will review two books by Armine von Tempski—"Born in Paradise" and "Aloha." They are true stories of a white child's glorious youth and young womanhood in Hawaii, her paradise, of joyous personalities and a wide, splendid way of life that is fast vanishing from the earth.

Miss von Tempski has captured the spacious grandeur and the magical loveliness of the Islands, and her books incline one to feel that life is still a grand adventure, even when it tends to go against you.

Latest Book

"Aloha," which says, "My love to you," and is the moving and lovely Island hail and farewell, begins where "Born in Paradise" leaves off. It is her latest book and was published in 1946. The infectious zest of these fine and touching autobiographies make excellent entertainment.

Mrs. Cook not only teaches Senior English, but is in charge of the Smith-Cotton Annual. She received her AB from Park College and her MA from the University of Missouri. She is a member of Pi Lambda Theta, honorary fraternity for women in education. A former instructor in English in Kansas City and in education at Missouri University. She is also author of English texts for Junior High School and contributes to National Council of Teachers of English Publications.

Monday's program is under the Civics department, Mrs. Arthur Klang is chairman of same.

Red Cross Corner

We've been waiting for this opportunity and it's finally arrived. All of the boys' shirts are cut and in the hands of the Red Cross Volunteers who are at the moment busy with basting threads, sewing machines and the like. Mrs. Fred Brink, who has done a really unprecedented job of work as Chairman, is happy to make this announcement, and follows it up with the reminder that all these little garments MUST be back at ARC headquarters on or before January 31.

In spite of the successful conclusion to the campaign for sewers, we still have a good deal of ground to cover on the Knitting situation. Much as we hate to admit it, the children's sweaters and the beanies are still with us, in their original state of hanks and balls. It goes without saying that hanks and balls aren't any too useful, and Mrs. John C. McLaughlin, Chairman of Knitting, will appreciate a little more activity on the part of her Volunteers. If you can't come and get the yarn, we'll send it out to you. Please call 618.

The following is a "quote" from a letter sent out this past week to all teachers in Pettis and Benton Counties from Mr. C. F. Scotten, County Superintendent: "Arrangements have been made for interested teachers in Pettis and Benton Counties to enroll in an instructor's course in Safety and Accident Prevention, sponsored by the American Red Cross. There is no fee or charge for the course. Lessons will be taught by Mr. F. C. Bills, a special Red Cross representative. To receive an instructor's certificate each teacher must attend two sessions, each of which is three hours in length. She will then be eligible to present the junior course to pupils in the seventh, eighth and ninth grades or to interested adults in the community."

Although 1947 is still very much a "New" year, the work of the Red Cross office is still so heavy that the period of war emergency might still be with us. Our quotas and consignments continue to be large, and the fact that we are always prompt means not only a good record in the area office, but also more work. The office routine has not changed with the arrival of the peace era, but the office work has increased. This brings to mind the realization that much of that office work is largely dependent on the Staff Assistants who have worked throughout the war and who are continuing to work into the post war period on a strictly volunteer basis. It is also interesting to note that the Chairman of the Staff Assistants, Mrs. Arthur Hoffman, is the only Chairman who took over her duties at the inception of the S. A. Corps and still holds that position. In the case of the other corps and departments, it has been expedient to change chairmen from time to time, this being the wish of the chairmen themselves.

Family Night At PTA Meet

Family night was enjoyed by the Anderson Parent-Teacher Association Friday night at which Mrs. Milton Bopp presided.

The following program was presented: Zora and Dewain Snow, recitation; Mrs. E. T. Edmondson, piano solo; Jane and Josephine Wadleigh, vocal duet; Mrs. Milton Bopp proposed a riddle, and group of young people from the New Bethel church sang several numbers.

Mrs. Eugene Helman, supervisor of music, presented the following pupils in a musical program: Zora Snow, Jerry Dean O'Neill, Gary Bopp, Mary Ann Lewis, Billie Sue O'Neill, Wanda Morris, Marion Edmondson, Joyce Snow, Mary Jeanette Edmondson.

Irwin Raut, representing the Gideon's, presented testaments to 14 older pupils of the school.

Mrs. Bopp presented the petition for the county library to the group.

The Parent-Teacher Association voted the sum of $5 for the Crippled Children Fund.

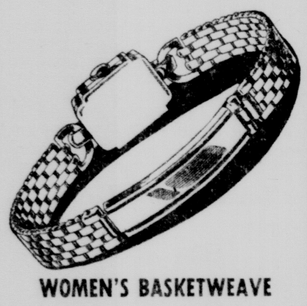

Mrs. Bopp reported of the PTA district conference held recently at Boonville and Mrs. Edmondson, reported on the meeting of the Parent-Teacher County Council, of which she is president.

Scouts and Cubs to Have Pot Luck Supper

The Boy Scouts and Cub Packs of Sedalia are making plans for their annual Pot Luck supper and stunt night, which will be held at convention hall, Liberty park, at 7 o'clock Monday night, February 10. More than 500 persons are expected to attend.

The program this year will be of particular interest to parents, as the boys will furnish the program.

Tigers Sell Greenberg to Pittsburgh

'Sizeable Sum' Paid For Major League Home Run Slugger

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 18—(AP)—Henry (Hank) Greenberg, the major league's home run king, today was purchased by the Pittsbugh Pirates from the Detroit Tigers for an undisclosed but a "sizeable sum" of cash.

Hamey Announces Purchase

General Manager Roy Hamey, in announcing the purchase of one of baseball's highest paid players, said the Pirates landed the big slugger after days of negotiating between Frank McKinney, president and principal owner of the Pittsburgh club, and Billy Evans, new general manager of the Tigers.

Hamey declined to say what the Pirates paid for the man who hit 44 home runs last year to lead both leagues in circuit swats, but said it was a "sizeable sum" of cash. Before the deal could be completed the other seven American league clubs had to waive on the services of the first baseman-outfielder.

Greenberg, who has pounded out 311 homers in his major league career, five of them in world series competition, started out with the Tigers in 1933 as a first baseman. But in 1940 Manager Del Baker caused something of a sensation when he switched the big boy to the outfield.

Herman To Place Him

Billy Herman, new manager of the Pirates, will say what position the 36-year old star will play with his new club, according to McKinney.

General Manager Billy Evans declared that all seven other American league clubs declined to claim the big slugger at the $10,000 waiver price.

"No American League clubs were interested in his contract at that figure, making it possible for us to send him to the National League," Evans said.

While it never has been officially disclosed, it was the accepted belief in Detroit baseball circles that Greenberg's 1946 pay check was approximately $60,000.

Several years ago Jack Zeller, then general manager of the Tigers attempted to sell the tall home run king to the New York Yankees but the Yanks were reluctant to assume his high-salary contract at that time and the deal fell through.

Hank entered the army May 7, 1941, but was discharged as over age before the United States entered the conflict. He reenlisted two days before Pearl Harbor and rose from a private to a captain before being discharged June 14, 1945.

Nears Ruth's Record

He had his greatest home run year in 1938 when he cracked out 58, only two short of Babe Ruth's major league record.

Whether the Pirates will have to pay Hank anywhere what he drew with the Tigers is a matter that will have to be settled before the Pirates go into spring training at Miami Beach Fla. It was his big bat that brought the Tigers out of the doldrums and to the American League pennant in 1945 and his two world series homers played a big part in giving Steve O'Neill's champions victory over the Chicago Cubs.

He had slowed down somewhat last season but played 142 games, in which he connected with 144 hits for a total base card of 315. In 1935 and again in 1940 he was voted the American League's most valuable player.

Hank Pirate Outfielder

NEW ALBANY, Ind., Jan. 18—(AP)—Manager Billy Herman of the Pittsburgh Pirates said tonight he probably would use newly-acquired Henry (Hank) Greenberg in the outfield next season.

"I'm pretty sure we'll use Hank in the outfield," Herman said at his home here, "but of course we will have to see how everything shapes up before we're absolutely certain."

Sacred Heart To Play Marshall Today

The Sacred Heart basketball team will go to Marshall this afternoon where they will meet the cage team of that city.

Terry Moore Signs With The Cardinals

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 18—(AP)—The St. Louis Cardinals announced today the signing of outfielder Terry Moore to a new one-year contract while the St. Louis Browns reported receipt of shortstop Vern Stephens' signed agreement via the mails from his home in California. No terms were disclosed.

Moore's signing was the first announced by the Cardinals although owner Sam Breadon stated after their conference that "there are quite a few signed but I don't want to talk about them now."

The Browns previously had announced the signing of outfielder Jeff Heath.

Organize State Recreational Association

Three Branches in Program, Commercial, Industrial, Community

JEFFERSON CITY, Jan. 18—(AP)—Delegates to the Missouri Recreation Conference here adopted today a resolution to organize into a state recreational association and appointed a committee to draw up a plan of organization.

A Steering Committee

The steering committee, composed of 15 members, is charged with setting up an association in which equal representation and interest be shown the three branches of recreational programs, community, industrial and commercial.

The program calls for annual meetings of the new organization but no date was set for the next conference.

The two-day conference which closed late today was sponsored by the state department of resources and development in an effort to coordinate the action of all Missourians interested in recreational programs.

Name Former Sedalian

The members of the committee which will formulate a tentative plan of the new organization are:

E. A. Leach of St. Louis, chairman; Gus E. Budde, St. Louis; Alfred H. Wyman, St. Louis; Robert E. L. Hill, Columbia; Dr. Hayes A. Richardson, Kansas City; L. L. Bever, St. Louis; Jack Matthews, Columbia; Dr. Z. Lee Stokley, Poplar Bluffs; Marie A. Kolb, Joplin; Robert S. Clough, Columbia, former Sedalian! Coe Pritchett, Jefferson City; H. C. Klinefelter, Columbia; L. A. Kelly, Osage Beach; Herman Lark, Steelville, and Frank Bates of Rolla.

Charles G. Brightbill, associate director of recreation in the federal security agency, appealed for a recreation program for every community's residents because "no town in America can afford not to" provide healthful and educational relaxation for leisure time.

Recreation, he said, "can help produce a healthy people x x x, can teach the young and old the ways of democratic, social living, can promote the cultural arts and sciences (and) x x x develop good citizenship."

Sport Scraps

By D. KELLY SCRUTON

SMITH-COTTON high school Tigers of the 1946 football season are to be guests of the Sedalia Optimist Club, Tuesday, at which luncheon Paul Christman, famous All-American of the middle thirties, who starred with the University of Missouri, will be the speaker. It's an honor for the Tigers, one that they haven't enjoyed in years—the fact they are to receive gold footballs which they will cherish for years to come.

Through the efforts of John R. Van Dyne, an ardent football fan, and likewise an ardent supporter of the Smith-Cotton Tigers as well as the University of Missouri Tigers, this program has been arranged. "These footballs which will be presented to the boys, are exact duplicates of those which the University and Colleges present their players when they are champions. They are of the best material obtainable and are something the boys can always keep and look upon as something earned when on the Smith-Cotton squad," Van Dyne said.

Van Dyne conceived the idea of footballs and called upon various members to "donate" to the fund, and the subscription was quickly raised, the order placed and plans set up for the meeting. A close friend of Christman, Van Dyne contacted him and the program completed.

There isn't a boy who has participated in football that does not know all about Christman. His feats are well engraved in sports records of football, and it will not only be a treat to the Tigers to hear him, but every member of the Club. Incidentally the club members are expected to bring one guest to the luncheon.

To me is is another mark for the Optimist toward their boy's work in Sedalia.

SOMETIME ago the Liberty Park board granted permission to play basketball in convention hall. But then backstops, and baskets became a problem. A search for those which had been in the hall resulted in nil. Efforts were made to locate some by the various local Independent teams and still they could not be found.

Members of the park board, began to wonder what was wrong and learning the problem, quickly solved it. The board has agreed to buy them, in fact they have been ordered and should be here Monday. Another thing they are far better than what was at the park and what probably would have been put up if the teams found them.

They are of the latest design, all steel complete back stops with the goal, basket and everything that goes with it. They are of the fan shape type, which now are regulation.

Not only that but the Adco Chemist team is putting in their part, through John R. Van Dyne, Dick Van Dyne and Charles Van Dyne. They are going to help by furnishing sanders to sand the floor and their gymnasium filler and floor polish to put the court in perfect condition.

The various teams are going to furnish the help to get the floor in shape, do the work, and paint the lines. It no doubt with the treatment will be one of the nicest looking courts in Missouri.

Games are expected to get underway at Convention Hall within the next few days.

WELL Sedalia is now swinging along in Boy Scouting, since the local units have been made orphans. Orphans because they are now on their own, but certainly in good hands under the direction of local Scoutmasters, leaders and the Advisory Committee here.

Plans are well underway for a program for Boy Scouts of America week, the week of February 3. A potluck supper is being arranged, and from information given me will be the biggest ever held in Pettis County.

In fact a program which starts with the Scout Week, will carry on through the spring, summer and into the fall. By that time Sedalia will either have it's own Council, or will be annexed to some other Council other than the Lake of the Ozarks.

Owner's Choice Wins San Felipe Stakes

ARCADIA, Calif., Jan. 18—(AP)—Owner's Choice, owned by Mrs. John D. Hertz of Chicago and Canoga Park, Calif., captured the $50,000 San Felipe stakes at Santo Anita Park today as highly regarded Jet Pilot finished out of the money.

The Elobee Farm's Yankee Valor ran second in the field of 12, with C. O. Stice and Sons' On Trust finishing third as a throng estimated at 58,000 attended the turf program.

Owner's Choice, ridden by Jockey Johnny Longden, romped the seven-furlongs in 1:23 3-5—fast time for this classy array of three year old colts and geldings.

The winner paid $4.80, $3.70 and $2.90, Yankee Valor, with Johnny Chojnacki aboard, paid $4.90 and $3.50, and On Trust $4.60.

Los Angeles Rams Sign Halfback Steve Baragus

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 18—(AP)—The Los Angeles Rams of the National Professional Football League today acquired Halfback Steve Baragus from the Washington Redskins in exchange for backs Tom Farmer and Ralph Ruthstrom.

Baragus, former Notre Dame star, was a sensational open field runner for the Redskins last year, and combined with Slingin' Sammy Baugh, ranked third in the league in pass catchers. He joins an array of backfield talent which includes Bob Waterfield, Tommy Harmon, Pat West, Jack Wilson, Fred Gehrke and others.

Bud Wilkinson To Succeed Jim Tatum

NORMAN, Okla., Jan. 18—(AP)—President George Cross of the University of Oklahoma announced today Charles (Bud) Wilkinson, the Sooners assistant football coach, had been elevated to the head coaching position to succeed Jim Tatum who resigned to accept a post as head coach and athletic director at the University of Maryland.

Tatum said he regretted leaving Oklahoma but believed the move afforded his family more security and himself a greater opportunity as a coach.

The genial mentor, who coached the Sooners to co-championship of the Bix Six Conference and a Gator Bowl victory his first year at O. U., said he had requested and the board of regents had released him from his three-year contract.

Tatum declined to disclose how much he would receive at Maryland but it was reported he would get $12,000 a year.

Becker Meets Swedish Angel Tuesday Night

In the Semi-Windup Newman Clashes With Schwarz of Brooklyn

WRESTLING SCHEDULE
Main Event
George Becker vs. Swedish Angel
Oakland, Calif. Stockholm Sweden
2 falls out of 3, 90 minute time limit.
Semi Windup
Lou Newman vs. Ray Schwarz
Los Angeles Brooklyn, N.Y.
2 falls out of 3—45 minute time limit.
Special Event
Jim Parker vs. "Bad Boy" Brown
St. Joseph, Mo. Polo, Mo.
1 fall with a 30 minute time limit.

Place: State Guard Armory.
Time: 8:30 p.m., Tuesday.
Referee: Harry Cohen, Kansas City.

The Swedish Angel, Stockholm, Sweden, comes back to Sedalia Tuesday night to meet George Becker of Oakland, Calif., in the main event of the Pettis County Post No. 16, American Legion weekly wrestling event. The Angel, seldom beaten, has been the target for many wrestlers, and accepted a challenge from the young mat man from California.

Becker, who recently came to the middlewest from California where he won a heavyweight title, has not been defeated in Sedalia or Jefferson City since he has appeared in these two cities. Not only that but in his appearance in Sedalia Becker has won the favoritism of local mat followers.

The Angel, who has appeared in nearly every city where wrestling has been held, is one of the strongest men following the sport. Everywhere he is accused of having features which cause children to cry and women to scream when he gets into action in the ring.

The semi-windup match is one anticipated to be a real ring thriller. Newman and Schwarz are both excellent wrestlers and know how to handle themselves in the ring. Anything can happen when these two clash for the right to return to Sedalia, in the "top spots" on the card.

Supporting the two feature events is the opener which brings together Jim Parker, St. Joseph, Mo., one of the roughest men to climb through the ropes in Sedalia, and "Bad Boy" Brown, of Polo, Mo., who likewise has displayed his dislike for clean wrestling and resorts to the rough tactics.

The Chicago Bears Sign Bob Fenimore

CHICAGO, Jan. 18—(AP)—The Chicago Bears today signed Bob Fenimmore, fleet Oklahoma A & M halfback, completing a local one-two punch in talent grabbing which the National Football League hopes may knock the rival All-America Conference out of Chicago and perhaps right out of business.

Owner-Coach Halas of the National Loop champion Bears announced Fenimore's signing of a three-year contract at a press conference a little less elaborate than the reception given All-America Charley Trippi of Georgia at his signing by the Chicago Cardinals yesterday.

"We're not trying to outdo the Cardinals from a publicity viewpoint," solemnly remarked Halas, "but put it down that Fenimore is the best college player in the country—even though he failed to repeat his All-America honors of 1944 and 1945 last season."

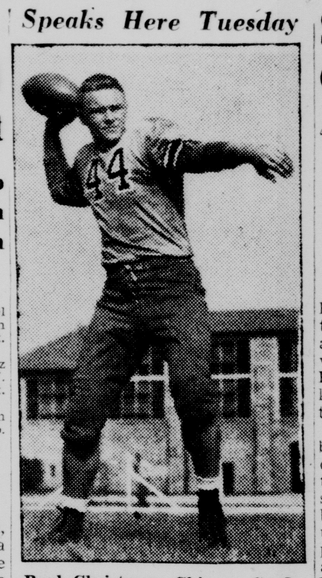

Red Sox Outplace Cards In All-Stars

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 18—(AP)—Although the St. Louis Cardinals subdued the Boston Red Sox in the world series, the American league pennant winners outplayed the world champions 5 to 2 on the 1946 all-star team announced today by the Sporting News.

Detroit with two places and the New York Yankees and the Cleveland Indians with one each were the only other clubs accorded berths on the team chosen for the baseball publication by 298 members of the Baseball Writers' Association of America.

The team, Stanley Musial, Cardinals, first base; Bobby Doerr, Red Sox, second base; Johnny Pesky, Red Sox, shortstop; George Kell, Detroit, third base; Ted Williams and Dom Dimaggio, Red Sox, and Enos Slaughter, Cardinals, outfielders; Aaron Robinson, Yankees, catcher, and Hal Newhauser, Tigers, Bob Feller, Cleveland, and Dave Ferriss, Red Sox, pitchers.

Speaks Here Tuesday

Paul Christman, Chicago Cardinal quarterback, former All-Americain football star while playing with the University of Missouri, will be the speaker at the meeting of the Sedalia Optimist Club, Tuesday, when Smith-Cotton football players will be awarded gold footballs.

All-Church Team Still Is Winning

Sacred Heart Is Latest Victim Of Steamroller 26-4

The strong All-Church team continued to overpower its opposition in the Saturday morning Sunday School Basketball League, the latest victim being the Sacred Heart team. The score was 26 to 4.

The All-Church team has a definite height advantage and this proved to be the deciding factor. Hoist, center for the All-Church team, was able to control the major portion of the rebounds and secured several tip-in shots to lead the scorers with 14 points.

The All-Church team was organized to take care of the boys who attend a Sunday school not having enough boys to form a team. These boys are not eligible for the championship banner since this award is given annually to the highest place team representing an individual church.

In the second game of the morning, the twice champion First Baptist church team defeated the Fifth Street Methodist 30 to 3. The First Baptist team used all nine of their players at least one quarter in the game.

In the third game of the morning the East Sedalia Baptist team remained in the running as a contender for the championship by defeating the First Christian team 34 to 12.

Two more rounds remain to be played with the schedule for next Saturday being as follows: At 10:15 Sacred Heart vs. East Sedalia Baptist, at 10:45 First Baptist vs. First Christian, and at 11:15 All-Church team vs. Fifth Street Methodist.

Standing of the team:

	Won	Lost
All-Church	3	0
First Baptist	2	1
East Sedalia Baptist	2	1
Sacred Heart	1	2
First Christian	1	2
Fifth Street Methodist	0	3

Athletic Commission Rules Out The TKO

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Jan. 18—(AP)—The Missouri Athletic Commission is ruling out technical knockouts under its revised regulations for professional boxing and wrestling.

Commission Chairman Floyd W. Jones disclosed today, following a meeting of the commission, that hereafter if a boxer is injured and unable to continue before halfway through the scheduled bout the referee will rule the match a draw.

If half or more of the rounds have been fought when the injured fighter is unable to continue the match will be awarded to his oppenent on a decision.

Commissioners yesterday granted wrestling referee Jack League of Joplin the hearing he had demanded in a Cole county court petition and after it was over they again suspended him for 60 days and fined him $50. The suspension applies to Missouri only.

Tigers In Second Place In C. M. C. Cage Conference

With the backing of several hundred students, the Smith Cotton Tigers carried their school to another victory Friday night, when they defeated the Columbia Kewpies in their first home basketball game, by a score of 41 to 28.

Smith-Cotton got off to a very bad start and the Columbia team didn't seem to be doing much better. The Sedalia boys just couldn't seem to find the range of the basket. Soon after the game got under way, the Tigers took a two point lead but with several futile attempts to make additional points lost the narrow margin they held over the strong Columbia five.

Second quarter was practically a repetition of the first. The Tigers had only scored 7 points in the first quarter and Columbia 8. The second quarter found Sedalia gaining 10 more points, and Columbia slowing down with only 6.

When the boys came back onto the court after the half, it was evident that Coach Rogers had given them the conventional "mid-point talking," for they displayed new energy and looked prepared for anything Columbia might try.

During the third quarter the Bengals matched their second quarter in points scored, that is, 10. During this third quarter the Columbians were held practically scoreless, the Tigers allowing them only two points. In the fourth stanza Sedalia started sending in their substitutes, who took over the job of their more experienced teammates and did it well. They allowed Columbia twelve points, and scored thirteen.

Thomas High Pointer

Thomas high point man for Smith Cotton earned 21 of the forty-one Sedalia points himself. Fleetwood, Columbia center, accounted for 13 of the Columbia points.

During the half, several baton twirlers entertained the crowd. Leroy McKennan, sophomore and Barbara Haggard, senior displayed their twirling skill by several tricks with the baton.

After winning this game Smith Cotton holds to their second place in the Conference without any trouble. Hannibal is first with no efeats, Smith Cotton has five wins and one defeat. Hannibal, four wins and no defeats.

Smith Cotton will meet College High on the Smith Cotton court Wednesday. College High is one team that has not been defeated this year, and the game will probably prove to be a closely matched one.

W. Marcum, James Sanders, Percy Crecelelius, Glenn Bottom. Front row left to right, Marvin Burford, D. W. Watts, Glenn Young, George Marcum, and Dewey Homan. (Photo by Lehmer Studio)

Teachers May Revise 'No Strike' Policy to Force Wage Increases

By Douglas Larsen
NEA Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, (NEA)—Whether to resort to wholesale strikes and to use the threat of strike in contract negotiation is the top question facing the nation's school teachers in 1947.

The present teachers' code of ethics of the National Education Association, largest teachers' organization in the country, does not sanction strikes while contracts exist. But as teachers' salaries continue to lag far behind average earnings in private employment, there is a responsible bloc in the association which favors amending the code.

Even under the present code, however, it is not unethical to cease work or even to leave the profession if satisfactory contracts are not negotiated, according to Willard E. Givens, executive secretary of the Education Association. He doesn't call such refusal to work without a contract a "strike," but he admits it is not much different from John L. Lewis' "no contract, no coal" strategy.

Although Givins and the association don't approve of the 200-odd strikes of teachers which have taken place in the country recently, he admits that they have been helpful in focusing attention of the citizens on the educational crisis which now exists. This admission is one of the reasons some factions in the organization would like to see its policy become more aggressive durjng the coming year. Givins, however, maintains that it might detract from the dignity of the profession as a whole if there is any change made in the present code of ethics. He thinks the problem can be solved on a long-term basis.

The National Education Association's annual report, just released, claims that "teachers leaving the profession since 1939 have formed one of the greatest vocational migrations in our nation's history."

Thousands of Vacancies

The report reveals approximately 60,000 vacancies in teaching jobs in the country today, and adds:

"Qualitatively also the loss has been very serious. It is estimated that the average public-school teacher in 1945-46 has attended college one year less than the average teacher of 1939-40."

Believed to be one of the most alarming figures in the report is the decline of students in the teachers' colleges. The North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools reports that in its area, only 3757 students finished preparation for elementary teaching in 1946, compared to 10,182 in 1941, and that only 4954 completed preparation for high-school teaching, compared to 9327 in 1941. Further:

"In 1920, 22 per cent of all college students in the U. S. were attending teachers' colleges; in 1945-46 only seven per cent."

That seven per cent includes many veterans in teachers' colleges, not studying to teach but there only because of crowded conditions in other colleges.

Labor front hints of a new wave of demands for pay increases in industry even more forbidding for 1947. The price rises which would follow a general industrial wage increase would make the teachers' salaries even less able to support them than now.

Givins says the only goal of his association is to make sure that U. S. children get the best they can in the way of education. He says to resort to the use of the "strike" would violate this duty to the children. But, he adds, it is perfectly all right for teachers to drop out of the profession altogether, if they can't win satisfactory contracts. This, he says, will eventually lead citizens of a community to demand that teachers get more money.

Machinists Entertain Service Men

Dinner Honoring Returned Men in Craft Thursday Night

Approximately 200 members of the Machinist Local 71, of the local Missouri Pacific shops, their wives, guests and visitors attended the banquet Thursday evening at the Epworth M. E. church, Broadway and Engineer, given in honor of the returned service men in the machinist craft.

Before a turkey dinner was served the invocation was given by the Rev. Emerson Hurd, pastor of the church. The program committee consisted of H. L. Williams, chairman, Rudy Bus and Roger Stratton.

P. R. Nichols was presented by Mr. Williams as the master of ceremonies and Nichols introduced the guests, C. F. Longstretch, special representative of the publicity department of the Missouri Pacific Lines, Prof. A. W. Nebel, of the University of Missouri, Miss Mary Smasal, nurse at the local shops, "Hi" Simmons, baseball coach at the University of Missouri.

Returned Service Men

Mr. Nichols then presented the returned service men as follows: Homer New, Lawrence Dotson, Herman Logan, Charles Wingate, Wayne Vanderlinden, Harold Strohemer, Frank Strohemer, Everett Johnson, Herbert Young, Dale Patton, Donald Richardson, Frank Sedlak, Raymond Rains, Raymond Pinkypank, Leonard Woolery, Virgil Skaggs, Lloyd Steele, David Mahnken, Billy Cooper, Charles Hayes, Shelby Hunter, Maurice Silsby, Earl Curry, Wayne Morton, Homer Wild, William Kindle, Claude Trent, Hugh Curry, Lawrence Roe, James Barnes, William Donath, James Blue and Ed Witt.

The men's quartet of the First Baptist church consisting of Bob Wild, A. B. Case, Carl Yesson and Paul Ginn, rendered the following numbers during the course of the program: "Get on Board Little Children", "Ezekiel Saw The Wheel", "I Had a Dream, Dear", and "Bye, My Coney Island Babe".

Kilbury Speaks

Mr. Nichols introduced C. R. Kilbury, superintendent of the local shops, who responded with a few remarks befitting the occasion. He mentioned that the machinist craft was a large and an important craft and a meeting of this kind brought a closer relationship. "We must do something for our fellowman, and at all times respect our fellowmen," stated Mr. Kilbury.

He discussed the meaning of craftsman and related several instances in a man's career, which occurred while performing the duties of his trade. In closing he stressed the importance of not forgetting the returned veteran. "We are proud of our boy's and we must not forget them," concluded Mr. Kilbury.

Principal Speaker

Chris Junge, principal of the Warrensburg high school, was the principal speaker of the evening and was introduced by the master of ceremonies.

Mr. Junge stated his business was school and his topic was "Schools and the Teaching Situation". He compared the apprenticeship of craftsmen with the teacher. Mr. Junge spoke regarding the crowded condition of the schools throughout the country and said for the next fifteen years this condition would exist, referring to it as the "bulge".

He discussed briefly the G. I. Bill of Rights giving the returned veteran the right to an education if he sees fit, to fit him for his future in life.

He mentioned the subjects now being taught in the school, said he was in favor of more practical things being taught to prepare the student for the business world after he leaves school. He also spoke of the cost of education and that the fact that the state of Missouri is losing teachers account of the low salaries.

Moving Picture

In concluding his talk Mr. Junge, who is a forceful and energetic speaker, brought forth true facts which the people of the state had been overlooking in the past and offered several suggestions how this condition could be taken care of.

Following Mr. Junge's talk Mr. Nichols presented "Hi" Simmons, baseball coach at the University of Missouri, who responded with an interesting talk on baseball and then showed moving pictures of the football game between Missouri and Nebraska last fall in which Missouri defeated Nebraska by a score of 21 to 20.

Souvenirs of War

Tragic Headlines Every Day That Pose a Big Problem in Peacetime Battle Against Crime

Lethal souvenirs: New York police property clerk John A. Flick looks down the sights of a German sub-machine gun over some of the 1800 souvenir firearms turned in by servicemen. Countless weapons like this, not turned in, make a continuing problem for police, not only in New York but everywhere in the nation.

By NEA Service

Or maybe it says something about a revolver somebody brought home from the war being used in a holdup. The story has a variety of settings, sometimes a holdup, sometimes an accident, sometimes the eternal triangle. But hardly a day passes that one of those stories doesn't involve wartime firearms.

The Federal Bureau of Investigation, althought it does not keep statistics on the number of souvenir weapons and service arms involved in crime, says through a spokesman that the use of such weapons "has been a very serious problem in the attempts of the local police and the FBI to reduce crime."

New York tried to do something about it. A plea to servicemen to turn in such weapons netted 1800 guns of all types last winter—a small haul in comparison to the number which continues to show up in crimes and accidents .

And New York authorities frankly, don't know what to do with the weapons once they get them. Even if they render a gun harmless, from a shooting standpoint, and turn it back to the owner, he can get mixed up in a misdemeanor charge unless the gun is registered and a permit is issued.

The suburban city of Yonkers, faced with the same problem, has decided to enlist competitive spirit in eliminating the weapons.

There, a month-long campaign has just begun to get owners of souvenir guns and service arms to turn them into a veterans' organization of their choice. The veterans' post which assembles the best collection will get a $50 bond as a prize from Yonkers Safety Commissioner Patrick O'Hara.

The police department will have its own exhibition (with no prizes involved) for those who want to by-pass veterans' posts. As fast as they're turned in for display, the weapons will be made harmless, and when the contest is over, will remain in police custody.

This,they hope, will go a long way toward taking the word "souvenir" out of shooting headlines.

Looking Backward

Forty Years Ago

From 7 o'clock Saturday morning until 5 o'clock that afternoon the machinery at the pumping station of the Sedalia Water company was shut down by orders of L. P. Andrews, president of the company. Flat creek overflowed its banks, water from the stream running by torrents into the pumping station.

Harley Laws, eighteen, of Otterville, drowned in the Lamine river Saturday when a skiff in which he and his brother were crossing the stream capsized.

Saturday a terrific windstorm struck in the northeastern part of the county doing extensive damage to farm buildings, homes and other property.

High water at Flat Creek Saturday prevented operation of the train on the Warsaw line of the Missouri Pacific. A work train on that road was forced to back up to Cole Camp Friday afternoon, due to high water.

L. A. Haas, of Kansas City, arrived Saturday to assume management of the Van Noy news stand at the Missouri Pacific station, succeeding James McSpaden, who resigned.

Negro Vote Faces Legislative Snags in South

By Henry Lesesne
NEA Special Correspondent

ATLANTA, Ga. (NEA)—The 1947 legislatures of the Deep South today hold the key to the immediate future of the Negro suffrage movement, which ran into setbacks last year almost as soon as it had seen Negroes voting for the first time and in relatively large numbers in several states.

In Georgia, Negroes have voted to a far greater extent than anywhere else in the Deep South, since Georgia has no poll tax and other restrictions are negligible.

But the late Gene Talmadge, who promised to end Negro voting by resorting to the South Carolina plan of stripping all primary laws from the books, won the unit vote last year, despite a popular vote for James E. Carmichael which 100,000 Negroes helped pile up in the summer primaries.

Georgia's forthcoming legislative roll call on the question: "Shall the General Assembly now elect a governor?" may end the muddle in which Talmadge's death left the state a month before his inauguration. But there is strong indication the confusion may have to be settled by the courts.

The Talmadge plan has worked, so far, in South Carolina, although strong pressure by the church, the press and others who are opposed to withholding political rights from the Negro undoubtedly will bring the primary question to a Federal court test.

Also, yet to face a test in the Federal courts is the Arkansas plan of splitting the primaries for Federal and state offices—letting the Negroes vote for Federal officers, Senators and Congressmen, but restraining them from voting for Governor and state offices.

The voters of Alabama, in the general election adopted the so-called Boswell amendment, which will require the voters to "interpret" the constitution, rather than read and write it. It is no more than several of the other states in the Deep South require, but it gives wide power to the boards of registrars and in application the Boswell amendment will be largely theoretical.

The fact is that while the Democratic party in Alabama threw open its primaries to Negroes, few Negroes can vote because of the state's poll tax, the most drastic of any of the seven states still retaining it.

The state's new governor, 37-year-old James E. (Big Jim) Folsom, has promised to repeal the poll tax as well as to make other reforms. He led the opposition to the Boswell amendment, which split the Democratic organization in Alabama wide open. But how far Folsom will get in the legislature is another question.

Case to Higher Court

Everett Noel, of near Lincoln, charged with forgery, waived his premilinary hearing Saturday morning in the magistrate court of Judge William Ilgenfritz, and was bound over to the circuit court.

Noel is accused of forging his father's name, J. E. Noel, on a check to the M. F. A. Central Cooperative, 212 South Osage avenue.

Noel was unable to put up for his bond, which was fixed at $2,000, and was committed to the county jail.

Year After Rebirth, KKK's Flame Is Feeble, Flickering

By Henry Lesesne
NEA Special Correspondent

ATLANTA, Ga.—(NEA)— The fiery cross of the Ku Klux Klan, symbol of organized racial and religious intolerance, still burns in some parts of the United States, but a year after the widely-heralded resurgence of the hooded order it is a flickering flame.

The stunted comeback of the Klan can be attributed to several things. A rather wide gulf exists between the 1940's and the 1920's when the order reached the zenith of its political terrorism. Too, the Klan was a pretty thoroughly discredited organization when it "disbanded" a few years ago.

Lawmakers generally recognize a need for laws to deal with "hate" organizations. But even without these laws the reborn Klan has had to proceed under constant attack from the press and a "crack down" policy on the part of federal and state authorities.

Not The Same

The postwar Ku Klux Klan asserts it is not the same organization as the old Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, Inc. Dr. Samuel Green, the Atlanta physician who is grand dragon of the revived order, calls it "The Association of Georgia Klans."

Yet, Dr. Green has issued so-called charters to Klans in other states and the Association of Georgia Klans operates under the same state-granted charter in Georgia as the old "Invisible Empire." The $10 initiation fee, ritual, regalia, constitution and mumbo-jumbo are the same.

The federal government, since the so-called "rebirth" of the order, has filed a $700,000 lien for back taxes against the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, Inc. But the once valuable property holdings and lavish national headquarters of the Klan here in the 20's seem to have disappeared.

Government attorneys were about to take this same action a few years ago when the hierarchy of the Ku Klux Klan announced it was disbanding. At that time the Klan was at its lowest ebb in membership and finances.

Revival of the Klan was brought to public notice last winter with a full regalia initiation ceremony at the base of Stone Mountain near Atlanta. A 300-foot fiery cross burned on the side of Stone Mountain.

At the ceremony, reports of Klan activity cropped up in other sections of the United States. Most activity seemed to be centered in Georgia.

Green then claimed a membership of 30,000 in Georgia. After the Georgia primary last fall he said that 100,000 Klansmen, ex-Klansmen and Klan sympathizers helped elect the late Gene Talmadge as governor. No one ever tried to say Talmadge himself was a Klansman, but on the Negro issue he and the Klan spoke the same language.

The Klan appeared on the Southern scene at a time when Negroes were voting for the first time in the Deep South's "real" elections, the "white" Democratic primaries, and the CIO and AFL were starting to organize the South's workers, white and black.

In Georgia, legal action against the Klan, started by Gov. Ellis Arnall, was stymied by the nomination of Talmadge and the befuddled political situation following Talmadge's death.

Some Southern observers doubt that revoking the Klan's charter is a cure for Ku Kluxury. They say the court of public opinion is, in the last analysis, the deciding factor. The Klan apparently has been fighting a losing battle in this respect.

Church denominations, in state conventions, have vigorously demanded action. The church, particularly in rural areas, is the dominating influence south of the Potomac and the one permanent tradition. These same church bodies have taken a liberal stand on Negro suffrage and some have gone so far as to oppose segregation.

Justice Department Probe

In the past year the Federal Justice Department has been investigating Klan activity in more than a half dozen scattered states and has also probed into reports of a tie-up with the old German American Bund.

Klan-Bund groups promoted racial and religious dissension before the war. Evidence along this line has been used to revoke Klan charters in California, New York, Kentucky, New Jersey and Wisconsin.

But federal intervention is limited to a thin thread of law—whether the civil rights of an individual have been violated. The same principle applies to federal investigation of lynchings. Broader powers for the Justice Department to enable it to "crack down" on hate organizations has been advocated in many quarters.

U. S. Attorney General Tom Clark remarked that there is no field of law in which the federal government is expected to do so much with so little.

Steps in the Training of a Good Hunting Companion

There's nothing like a good dog to add pleasure and profit to the hunt. But good dog companions don't just happen; practically without exception they are the products of long, conscientious training in the demands of the woods and fields. Some of the steps in the training of a good gun dog are here illustrated by Elias C. Vail, widely-known trainer of field dogs and director of the Gaines Research Kennels, Ridgefield, Conn.

"NO!" is one of the most valuable commands in preventing waste motion in hunting. A dog who will refrain from eating when commanded "No!" is well on the way toward being well trained.

"HEEL!" This command keeps the dog at his master's side ready for any contingency. Pointers and Setters "heel" on the right side while Retrievers walk on their master's left side.

"WHOA!" Picking the dog up and then planting him down firmly on all four feet while restraining him from moving is the best way to teach him to stop in his tracks on this command.

THE YOUNG DOG learns the correct form for a point by example from association with an older and well-trained dog. Constant correction leads to ultimate perfection of stance.

"COME!" is the first step in training a field dog. He learns from repeated tugs on a long lead and from pats when he obeys.

FIELD TRIAL DOGS are run in braces. Exuberant dogs have to be held back until they learn to stand without a lead while waiting for the starting signal.

HOLDING a point until a gun is fired is taught by having one man flush the bird while another holds the dog. After the gun is fired the dog is allowed to run to the end of a long lead, and thus comes to associate the two.

New Scientific Discovery Kills Hundreds of Home Odors!

Now You Can

NIL that Odor!

T. M. Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.

SUCCESSOR TO OLD TYPE "MASKING" DEODORANTS!

TAKES "B.O." OUT OF CLOTHES FAST!

KILLS TOILET BOWL ODORS INSTANTLY!

DEODORANT MEN LIKE, NO SHAVING NEEDED

KILLS NURSERY AND DIAPER ODORS!

DESTROYS PET ODORS QUICKLY, EASILY!

ENDS GARBAGE ODOR WITH DAILY SPRAYING!

Utterly New Kind Of Odorless Deodorant Spray Completely Destroys These Embarrassing Household And Personal Odors—Instantly, Safely, Easily!

TAKES "B.O." OUT OF CLOTHING . . . Just spray lightly in underarm area of coats, dresses, sweaters, etc. Spray girdles, too. NIL-sprayed clothes are fresh, dainty. Apply as needed—NIL pays for itself dozens of times over in reduced cleaning bills.

MEN CAN ACTUALLY WEAR SHIRTS 3 DAYS or longer without offensive odors. Just spray shirt armpits with NIL daily. Spray 3 days for less than 1c.

SPORTS CLOTHES, TOO, STAY ODORLESS practically forever! Apply as needed.

DESTROYS SHOE ODORS FAST! A quick spray of NIL in each shoe, after wearing, will keep shoes fresh.

EVEN DIAPER ODORS DISAPPEAR after a NIL treatment. Just spray used diaper, after changing baby, and also diapers in can or bag.

AN ODOR-FREE NURSERY is a blessing to mothers—and guests! If child vomits or breaks training, spray NIL on floor, furniture and clothes affected.

SICKROOM PATIENTS feel better, eat better, when they are not affected by odors from bedpans, bandages, etc. Visitors appreciate it. Spray NIL on outside of offensive bandages; spray bed-pans after using. (This patented formula proved and used for these purposes in hundreds of leading hospitals.)

KILLS BODY ODORS QUICKLY. Here's the successor to old-type personal deodorants for women who value daintiness. NIL does not mask an odor with an odor—it kills body odors, destroys them, neutralizes them instantly. No messy creams or chemical smells—just spray NIL mist under arms, or apply with cotton pad or hand. Safe, soothing, antiseptic—can be applied right after shaving. For nearly all users, lasts all day. Keeps clothes dainty, too, by killing the source of odors in perspiration. No other like it—no other can be like it—it's patented. Sleep happier, too; apply NIL before going to bed, and eliminate accumulated perspiration odor.

MEN'S DEODORANT—Here's one he'll use. No greasy creams, no "perfumed" odor. Odorless NIL mist is quick, pleasant and easy to use. Men like it, for no underarm shaving is required. Helps keep shirts fresh all day, too, by destroying the source of odors in perspiration. Takes 5 seconds to apply. Costs less than a dime a month.

FOOT ODORS DISAPPEAR when given daily protection with NIL. Just spray or pat NIL on feet and let dry.

GETS RID OF "KITCHEN-HAND" ODORS—from onion, fish, cheese, etc. Wash hands and moisten with NIL.

STOPS SINK AND SEWER ODORS FAST, with only a spoonful poured into the drain. Allow to stand a few minutes.

NO MORE SMELLY GARBAGE CAN—just spray the garbage in can daily. Also spray inside, before and after washing out can. NIL kills residual odors—keeps smell out of your home.

A CLEAN, ODORLESS TOILET BOWL is a sign of a fastidious house-wife. Just spray NIL on and in bowl once a day.

FRESHEN MUSTY BASEMENTS. Just spray on walls, floors, or directly on areas where odors originate.

MUSTY CLOTHES CLOSETS lose their odors within a few seconds after spraying with NIL. Use a light NIL mist on walls and clothes in closets.

WIPES OUT CLOTHES HAMPER ODORS. Just spray in hamper occasionally as dirty clothes accumulate.

DOG OWNERS AMAZED WITH NIL'S fast, low-cost action in keeping homes free of animal odors. Spray NIL where dog lies or sleeps. Spray or dampen dog, or apply with plastic or rubber comb. If animal commits a nuisance, spray affected spot to deodorize rug, floor, furniture, etc.

NOW MANY WHO LOVE DOGS, even in small apartments, can love them more! Many who would like to own a dog can now feel the last barrier to their enjoyment has been removed.

CAT ODORS GO TOO! Spray cushions, sofa, chairs, other spots cat favors; also spray cat's sand-box with NIL.

ODOR OF DEAD MOUSE OR RAT GOES FAST with a quick NIL treatment. Spray animal, remove, and spray area and air.

ODORS IN UPHOLSTERY caused by pets, spilled drinks, tobacco smoke, or burns, will disappear instantly when areas are sprayed lightly with clean, safe, odorless NIL.

TOBACCO ODORS AND "MORNING AFTER" ODORS, from alcohol, smoke, etc. disappear rapidly. Spray curtains, drapes, furniture (avoiding varnished surfaces) in room.

KILLS EVEN SKUNK ODORS! Soak affected garments in NIL, and wash NIL on skin and hair until odor disappears.

A TRULY ODORLESS REST-ROOM in public places, stores, service stations, etc. is not only a blessing to patrons—it's a good-will money-maker for you. Where many products simply "mask" one odor with another, NIL completely destroys rest-room odors without leaving an odor of its own. Spray NIL on and in toilet bowl, on floor, in drains.

HUNDREDS OF COMMERCIAL USES FOR NIL—wherever odors of any kind create a bad effect on either workers or patrons. For plant, home, office, or personal use, no other product can equal NIL's fast, simple action in destroying embarrassing odors! There's no true deodorant like it! Write Drug Dept., Skinner Mfg. Co., Omaha, Nebraska.

"Here's What You Ought to Say about NIL"

says Mrs. B., a NIL user

"Just tell folks they ought to forget everything they ever knew about deodorants, this one is so different. I threw out five deodorants, and use only NIL. You ought to say that NIL is free because it saves so much money.

"I tell my friends of course it is amazing that I can use NIL for personal daintiness, then turn right around and spray odors from my baby's diapers. I would like to thank personally the young ex-Navy lieutenant who invented NIL for what he has done to make my housekeeping easier."

We say, with Mrs. B., you just won't believe what NIL can do until you've used it. Think of it: after testing hundreds of odors scientists safely conclude NIL destroys more than 100,000 odors. Be dainty, be economical: "NIL that odor."

Keep A Bottle in the Kitchen—Keep A Bottle in the Bathroom—Available At Leading Grocery and Drug Stores Everywhere

NIL that Odor!

T. M. Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.

Why We Say NIL is the FIRST TRUE DEODORANT:

1. It quickly destroys (oxidizes) all objectionable home odors. NIL is patented—no other works like NIL.
2. It does not merely "mask" an odor with another odor.
3. It is completely odorless—has no odor, leaves no odor.

Big Thrill for a Little Girl

Biggest thrill in Maureen Egan's six years of life is shown above when, as Dr. George G. Deaver, of New York University, holds out his arms, the little girl walks for the first time since she was crippled by polio. The picture, a good one to remember when you contribute to the March of Dimes was taken at recent demonstration of rehabilitation program for handicapped persons.

Boyle Advises Women How to 'Get Their Man'

By Hal Boyle

NEW YORK, Jan. 17—(AP)—Man is a beautiful thing, a butterfly born in a foggy day.

He is also a fading fugitive—and the natural prey of woman.

Therefore it comes as a surprise when the "office girls" of the Goodrich company in Akron write in to ask "how we girls should go about picking a husband."

This is like a fox asking one rabbit how to catch another rabbit.

It is also a bit insincere, because — let's face it, girls — the problem isn't so much how to pick a husband as how to grab one.

Nature operates under the old economic law of supply and demand, and, unfortunately for the sex who in the old days rode side-saddle, there are now more women than there are men.

A Buyer's Market

So most of you gals who want to team up in marriage instead of punching a typewriter or hurling adverbs at somebody else's children — well, you just have to face the fact that it is a buyer's market. And men are the buyers. What have you got to sell? Just what have you got to make a man forsake the wonderful world he dwells in before woman makes him aware that he is lonely? In sports and war men enjoy a comradeship that is one of life's greatest gifts.

Before you reach for and bend one of these innocent creatures to your steel whims, sister, think of whether you can make him happy in the cage you build to tame him.

Oh, but you must have him anyway! I thought so.

Then track him down as you would any wild animal. You have the unfair advantage.

"The Unspoiled Creature"

Man is a fair and unspoiled creature of the crowd. He enters adult life as the great adventurer, the dreamer and the doer. This is why most great deeds, inventions and poems are wrought by men.

You, sisters, are the schemers. You "minions of the moon"—as Shakespeare called you — are really nothing more than crutches the Lord gave men to sustain them in the disappointment of their dreams.

"You can't make it yourself, sonny boy," you tell the frustrated paycheck you latch upon, "but maybe if we have a boy, he will."

And thereupon the disillusioned man makes a down payment on posterity. That fulfills your destiny—to be the link that keeps mankind a going concern.

But you probably know this already—as every woman does, and fight it as you will. Yet you still want to know how to catch that husband? You practical thing, you!

Well, darling, catch him in his tummy or in his loneliness. The bigger he talks the smaller he is—somewhere. Be there when he isn't sure of himself, and no man always is. Don't pepper him—salve him.

Victim of Appetite

If you are a beautiful girl. Go for a homely man. He'll be grateful and keep your beauty green when it is as old a memory as five-cent beer. If you are the kind of girl with hair like hemp and teeth like a fractured buzz saw, try for a handsome man. You'll make him look good in the later days when he needs the benefit of contrast. And anyway plain girls, by God's bounty, develop personality and character that outwears gold—or beauty.

Man is a victim of appetite. You have to bait the trap for a husband just as you would if you were going to catch a bear. Feed him when he is hungry, stroke him when he is angry. Give more than you get—at least until he leans upon you. Make yourself his habit.

When the befuddled thing can't quite do without you, lead him slowly and gently to the altar. Now you have your husband. But can you make him wear the bridle?

The Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18—When the average American thinks of the Senate Judiciary committee, he thinks of a dignified group of legislators solemnly pondering important legal problems. When the new judiciary committee met in executive session the other morning, that, however, was not the prevailing atmosphere. Nor is it likely to be during the next two years, in view of the strong personalities sitting on opposite sides of the table.

New chairman is pontifical Senator Alexander Wiley of Wisconsin, Republican, who never did get along with pompous Senator Pat McCarran of Nevada. McCarran is now ranking Democrat on the committee, while the ranking Republican behind Wiley is Fearless, unpredictable Senator Bill Langer of North Dakota. Committee members are looking for some beautiful scraps.

A forerunner came this week. McCarran was arguing for an early decision regarding committee personnel—how many clerks and secretaries would be assigned to the Democrats, and which members of the staff.

Testily, Chairman Wiley advised: "Hold your horses."

"I am holding my horses, but I can't hold them forever while you make up your mind," shot back McCarran.

"I guess I should have said 'hold your jackasses,'" replied Wiley, his face lighting up in appreciation of his own wit.

"When I think of jackasses," countered the Democratic senator from Nevada, "I think of you."

"You'd better be careful," snapped Wiley. "This is a jackass that will kick."

"I'm not worried," said McCarran. "I've always been able to step back out of the way in time."

FDR Jr. Blasts Housing

The office of new Housing Expediter Frank Creedon is still reverberating from a tongue-lashing administered by Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., over veterans housing.

F.D.R., Jr., won out, but not before some un-parlorlike language singed the long-distance wires between Washington and New York.

The son of the late president had learned of an order on veterans' rental housing, sent confidentially to regional housing officials, by which the American Legion would have dominated nationwide meetings on veterans' rental problems. The order instructed field officials to contact Legion and Chamber of Commerce representatives to assist in sponsoring the meetings.

It so happens that both the Legion and the Chamber of Commerce vigorously opposed the Wyatt housing program, yet no other organizations were mentioned by name in the official order.

When F.D.R., Jr., national housing chairman of the American veterans committee, was shown a copy of the confidential order, he grabbed a telephone and put in a call to new Housing Expediter Creedon. Creedon had left for the day, so the call was taken by a special assistant, William E. O'Brien.

"I'm new on the job here," O'Brien pleaded when young Roosevelt began to protest about the order. I'll check and call you back tomorrow morning."

"Well, you'd better make sure that memorandum is changed," declared Roosevelt.

Roosevelt Opposes Legion

O'Brien called back next day to explain that the order had been issued by Federal Housing Administrator Raymond Foley. Creedon had nothing to do with it, O'Brien said.

"I don't care who is responsible; I want it changed," demanded Roosevelt. "All five of the major veterans groups should be asked to participate in the rent meetings. Furthermore, labor, consumer and civic groups should be represented in addition to business leaders."

"I'll do my best," promised O'Brien.

"I won't be satisfied with anything less than a complete change of the order," said Roosevelt. "Otherwise, I intend to blast this thing wide open in the newspapers."

A short time later, Roosevelt's New York telephone began buzzing again. This time Sam Riddick, Creedon's expert on veterans' affairs, was on the line.

"What's the trouble, Frank?" he inquired. "You've tossed a bombshell into the agency down here."

"I'm going to begin tossing some real bombshells unless that order is withdrawn and amended," replied Roosevelt. "What are you trying to do—turn the housing program over to the Chamber of Commerce and Paul Griffith of the American Legion?"

Riddick assured Roosevelt that the A.V.C. and all other vet groups would be equally represented at the rental meetings. He also promised to see that local housing expediters set up advisory committees of the five veterans' groups to meet with business, labor and civic leaders in different communities.

"Veterans who have the consumer, not the producer viewpoint should be named to the committees," said Roosevelt. "I mean war veterans who have had housing problems of their own.

Church and Labor

It hasn't been announced officially, but prominent church leaders are beginning an important behind-the-scenes study in connection with the government's efforts to maintain industrial peace. There have been several private meetings recently at which both Protestant and Catholic clergymen sat down and traded ideas with industrial and labor spokesmen on the question of labor relations.

Already one important meeting has been held at the McCormick Spice company plant in Baltimore, one of the pioneers in profit-sharing and enlightened labor relations.

The study will reach full-dress proportions at a meeting in Pittsburgh, February 18 to 20, to be sponsored by the Federal Council of Churches of Christ. Churchmen and lay leaders, representing industry and labor, will be brought together to draft a "code of moral ethics" for management-labor dealings.

Officers of the National Catholic welfare conference, who took a leading part in the Baltimore meeting, also will be invited to the Pittsburgh Protestant conference.

While the churchmen deny that they are endeavoring to make religion a "bargaining factor" in the settlement of labor disputes, they feel that the church should play a definite part in improving work and pay standards. They also believe it is the duty of the church to inject a "greater sense of moral responsibility and understanding" in bargaining between employer and employees.

MAJOR CAMERON sat in a sequestered nook in the St. George bar where the palm trees were real, though they grew in tubs. His hat was on the back of his head, his brow knit; in his hand was a notebook in which he now and then scribbled a name. To observers, those few before-noon drinkers who sauntered in and out, he must have seemed a man whose disciplined brain plowed a single, fertile furrow of thought; but the fact was that he crossed out the names almost as soon as he wrote them, and his thoughts were jumbled as a crazy quilt.

He had just written "Walter McNally," and crossed it out (poor Walter!—a post-office clerk, of course, and so rather secure, with a steady, modest income; but still saddled, probably with the expense of his wife's illness and death) when the bartender called jovially to him:

"'Morning, Major. Ain't you gonna have your buttermilk?"

"No, I'll wait a while, thank you, Jim."

He would wait, he reflected, until Mr. Milgrim came in, as he was likely to do, and offered the buttermilk "on the company." The prices here were simply outrageous: twenty-five cents for a mug of buttermilk. Well, you paid for everything else with that mug—the sparkling mirrors behind the bar, Jim's white apron, Jim himself, the St. George management's taxes and interest on investment. As the word "investment" flashed into his mind, the Major winced. It had recent connotations; it brought up his last night's conversation with Sidney. She was becoming more incorrigible every day, that girl, more like the Major's unfortunate sister Laura. . . .

He had said to Sidney, "What you are demanding is not feasible. I am at present putting all my available funds into an investment."

"Could you make a better investment," she retorted, "than in your son's future?"

* * *

FOR fully a half-hour, having cooped him up in a corner of the parlor, she had continued her badgering. She wanted forty dollars—well, then, thirty-five—for Jeff; because Jeff had some sort of job in view, a job in a distant city to which he must travel by train; the money was for the railroad fare. Major Cameron hadn't quite understood what it was all about; this was partly because he didn't wish to, but largely because Sidney was so secretive. In anyone other than himself, the Major detested secrecy. Why couldn't Sidney come right out with it, instead of beating around the bush? He asked her that, and her answer was characteristically pert—why didn't he tell her the nature of his investment?

"In due time," he had said, "you will know, Sidney. In due time, as it materializes, forty dollars will seem the merest picayune sum to me and to all of us. Jeff will be able to travel any distance he likes, not to a job, but to college, a university—"

"Jeff? Why, Papa, he's too old for college. He's twenty-three. And, anyway, he can't hang around until due time. He's got to go at once or not at all. Surely you have a little ready money. We can't be that poverty-stricken!"

"My dear Sidney, we are not poverty-stricken. You must think of it as a temporary condition only, the—ummm—famine before the feast—"

"Tell me one thing," she said, "is this investment of yours connected with Mr. Milgrim at the St. George?"

He did not intend to tell her, but somehow her eyes had a compelling gleam. "Well—yes. But I don't—"

"Never mind. I just had to know that much."

* * *

BUT the truth was, and he avoided facing it oftener than he must, that the oil business was very slow in developing. This was to an extent the Major's own fault—or so Mr. Milgrim seemed to think. The president of the company was not "producing" enough. Mr. Milgrim said—which meant that the Major was not selling enough certificates fast enough. "You must produce, sir!" Mr. Milgrim said; and occasionally the Major detected a shade of censure in the adjuration. "After all, sir, a citizen of your pre-eminence in this community, this state, with shoals of friends!" . . . Well, the Major had already sold one hundred and eighty-three certificates, which was nine thousand, one hundred and fifty dollars' worth; but the next day he had gone out again on the route, visiting, among other old tobacco customers, Mr. Sylvester Atkins of Carp Creek, Indiana. Mr. Atkins bought a gross of Spunky Mule plugs; he didn't buy any Shenandoah stock. Mr. Atkins said he'd like to, but he now had four certificates, which was his limit. "A fellow can invest just so much, Major," Mr. Atkins said.

Mr. Milgrim was advocating speed and more speed. . . . Sometimes the Major was quite frantic and thought of himself as an elephant prodded from the rear by an irascible trainer. He borrowed from Jeff and bought a certificate; he sold one to his barber, one to a conductor on the Governor Street trolley, and then no more. He mused with regret upon the lack of conviviality in his past life. He had few intimates—none, really. And he began to make a list of his neighbors. He had the names of Mrs. Kerr, Dr. Tarpin, Mr. Fischer and Doc Morton. . . .

Then, suddenly inspired, the Major added another name: Judge Logan. A stiff, proud man, Judge Logan. The Major would enjoy doing him a favor, and, later, when the Shenandoah spouted a golden harvest, receiving his gratitude.

A CHANGING BODY

Every new sensation, disease, drug or treatment changes the body for better or worse by changing the reflex connections of the body. The nervous system is not only a conducting mechanism but a coupling machine. The body is then different than it was before to a slight degree hence a treatment that was effective at one time may be different in effect the next time given.

An irritation at any point of the body (from a spinal subluxation as an example) decreases the functional activity of EVERY other part of the body. Pavlov, the great Russian physiologist states, "A strongly excited point of the central nervous system DECREASES the irritability of all surrounding points." Irritation of nerves in the legs or at the spine send impulses to the brain where they spread like waves from a stone thrown in water. Unless one has read Pavlov's Conditioned Reflexes this inhibitory action cannot be understood but it is consistant with the chiropractic philosophy in every respect.

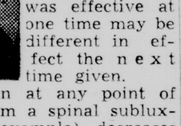

Chiropractic adjustments remove the points of irritation which are reflexly interferring with the functions of other organs to a degree but most decidely to the organ directly supplied by the nerve that is irritated.

The helpful effect of Chiropractic treatments are more far reaching than most people realize.

Give chiropractic a chance to restore your health.

The Story of the Supreme Court

Lewis Case Echoes Gompers-Mitchell Appeal

High Tribunal Handled a Similar Problem Twi ce Over 35 Years Ago

The nine men who will consider the Lewis Case: Members of the present Supreme Court, shown as they paid their annual visit to the president, are (left to right) Justices Wiley Rutledge, Frank Murphy, Felix Frankfurter and Hugo L. Black; President Truman; Chief Justice Fred M. Vinson, and Justices Stanley F. Reed, William O. Douglas, Robert H. Jackson and Harold H. Burton

EDITOR'S NOTE: As the John L. Lewis contempt case comes before the Supreme Court, an NEA Service correspondent presents the dramatic story of twelve other cases which shaped the nation's legal tradition. Here is the last of his five dispatches.

By S. Burton Heath
NEA Staff Correspondent

There is nothing new about John L. Lewis' idea of paying no attention to an injunction that he considered unconstitutional — if the first time.

that is what he did. Neither is there anything new about District Judge Alan Goldsborough's idea that such an attitude constitutes contempt of court.

The Supreme Court handled a similar case more than 35 years ago—handled it twice, in fact. By coincidence it concerned the man who then headed the American Federation of Labor (as Lewis would like to do); the man who was head of the United Mine Workers (as Lewis is); the District of Columbia judiciary (of which Judge Goldsborough is part.)

Samuel Gompers, AFL president, and John Mitchell, UMW president, did not get off with a fine for their contempt, as Lewis will even if he loses in the Supreme Court. They and an associate were given six ,nine and 12 months, respectively, in jail. But they beat the rap on appeal.

The AFL proposed to blacklist the Bucks Stove & Range Co. in a fight over hours of labor. The District of Columbia Supreme Court issued an injunction against the blacklisting, effective five days after issuance. Gompers rushed out an edition of the American Federationist, AFL house organ, which included the stove company in a "We don't patronize" list. He and his associates continued circulating the publication after the injunction became effective, and suggested that no law compelled unionists to purchase Bucks stoves. The boycott was not lifted for almost two and a half years.

There are several questions involved in the Lewis case, lawyers say. Some, which the Supreme Court is expected to answer either through its decision or as points in the opinion, are:

Is the United States, a sovereign, bound by prohibitions directed by Congress against others, as the ban upon strike injunctions in the Norris-LaGuardia Act?

If so—and if, therefore, Judge Goldsborough's injunction was wrong—did Lewis and the union nevertheless commit contempt by not heeding the order until he could get it set aside by another judge? (This involves a technical point whether a preliminary injunction can properly order anybody to do something positive, or merely to refrain from doing specific things.)

If Lewis was guilty of contempt, do the $10,000 fine against him and the $3,000,000 fine against the union reasonably measure the damage done by his fault, or are they justified as preventive steps to forestall further public injury, or are they excessive?

There are precedents in previous Supreme Court decisions on both sides of all questions, lawyers point out. Nothing here is new, or about to be settled for the first time.

One phase that intrigues some observers is the possibility that Lewis might be found guilty of contempt, even if the Goldsborough order was wrong, because he did not obey it while he was trying to get it upset.

Reverse Also Suggested

The reverse possibility is suggested by others—that the Government's freedom from Norris-LaGuardia restraint may be upheld, and therefore Judge Goldsborough's right to issue an injunction, but that nevertheless Lewis might get off on the ground that such a preliminary injunction can not command an affirmative act. The strike being already in effect, for Lewis to have called it off would have required specific action. But he merely sat tight.

The Lewis case was taken direct from the lowest federal trial court to the Supreme Court by agreement of both parties and with consent of the Court.

The Supreme Court decides for itself what cases it will consider. Almost anybody who feels aggrieved can ask the Supreme Court for redress, but two tests will decide whether he gets a hearing. Ordinarily he must show that he has exhausted other feasible recourses. And he must show that some constitutional question is involved.

The Court has original jurisdiction only in the case of suits affecting Ambassadors, Ministers and Consuls, and those to which a State is a party. Otherwise it confines itself to deciding, on appeal, whether a litigant has been deprived in lower courts of rights guaranteed by the Constitution.

Hearings are public. The nine judges—unless some are unavailable or have disqualified themselves because of previous connection with the controversy or its parties—sit behind a long bench. Lawyers admitted to practice before this highest court argue the case on the basis of the lower court record. A clever lawyer can work some new facts into his argument, ostensibly in explanation of his points, but theoretically the Supreme Court accepts the factual record from the lower court as complete, authoritative, final. It is concerned only with the law.

This might prove important in the Lewis case, since many lawyers think that the Government did not do too thorough a job in GAL 2—Lewis Case Echoes trying to prove how great was the damage done by the strike—and the Judges do not draw upon general belief or personal experience.

Decision Day

After hearing as many cases as they see fit, the justices withdraw to their conference room. Few laymen have set eyes on this. One who has, describes it as an impressive chamber with a handsome oval table around which the jurists gather to decide cases. Though no outsider seems certain, is is generally believed that when they discuss a case they are alone—without even a stenographer, a clerk or a messenger boy to overhear.

Around the oval table they discuss facts, figures, arguments, precedents, and logic until nothing seems likely to change opinions. Then they vote. The Chief Justice assigns a member of the majority to write an opinion explaining and justifying its decision. If any in the majority have concurred by different reasoning, or go only part way, or want to go further, they prepare their own opinions. The minority may choose one member to write for all, or each may want to speak his own piece.

Decision Day usually is on Monday. Then the justices gather in the public courtroom. Spectators and reporters are there. The spokesman for the majority in the first case takes over. He starts by naming and describing the case, mentioning the lawyers for each side, in a standard routine that all the judges know by heart. Then he outlines the contentions of each side, runs through precedents and reasoning, and eventually, in the final sentence, tells the Court's decision. It is not until that point that any spectator can know, for certain, what the Court did decide.

While an opinion is being read nobody can leave the room. As soon as one is completed reporters rush to get their stories, and spectators interested only in that case may leave.

Disappointed Presidents

It is generally known that Presidents select for the Supreme Court men whom they admire and whose philosophies are not too different than the Chief Executive's. Selections take account both of geography (the desire to please as many sections as feasible) and of race and religion. What is not so well known is that there is at least a casual attempt to balance the court with men who are qualified in connection with various fields of law—administrative, common, taxation, states, etc.

And the record shows that with great frequency Presidents have been disappointed in the men they have appointed—which is cited by lawyers in praise of the Court, not in blame. They say that there is something about elevation for life to the high bench that causes lawyers to lay aside personal whims and do their best to live up to their oath of fidelity to the Constitution.

No sooner had the liberal Oliver Wendell Holmes been seated than he smacked Teddy Roosevelt in the teeth with a setback in a trust busting case. The liberal Brandeis frequently disappointed Woodrow Wilson. Certainly Calvin Coolidge had no idea that Harlan Fiske Stone would become known as an outstanding liberal. Franklin Roosevelt's great disappointment was Felix Frankfurter.

The one prediction that can be based upon the opinions of veteran lawyers who know the Supreme Court, Constitutional law and the Lewis case, is that no wise man will venture to predict what the Court will decide.

Free Gas---While It Lasts

Autoists in Arlington, Va., recently got free gas for their cars, thanks to a mysterious seepage of thousands of gallons of high octane fuel that filled basements and wells. Above, NEA-Acme photographer Milt Freier takes advantage of the situation to gas up his car, aided by D. F. Rice, a local homeowner.

Arator Club Has Meeting

Mrs. J. J. Cramer entertained the members of the Arator club at her home Wednesday.

A buffet dinner was served at noon.

The business meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Ernest Cramer.

An impressive candle light ceremony for the installation of officers was conducted by Mrs. Charles Wilson. The officers are: President, Mrs. Ernest Cramer; vice president, Mrs. J. J. Cramer; secretary and treasurer, Mrs. N. B. Wallace; reporter, Mrs. Herbert H. Johnson.

Roll call was answered by "A convenience I hope to add to my home this year."

The minutes were read and approved by Mrs. N. B. Wallace.

Mrs. Ernest Cramer gave a report on the recent council meeting and further plans were discussed for the year's work. The new year books were distributed and partially filled out.

Mrs. R. V. Wilcox was made a new member of the club.

Guests at the meeting were: Mrs. Clay Thomas, Mrs. Mae Thomas, Herbie and Mary Kay Johnson.

The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Ernest May, February 19.

The average yield of corn on U. S. land is 33 bushels per acre but yields of 140 bushels to the acre are not uncommon and there is one report of a yield of 225 bushels an acre.

Up from War's Secret Depths:

Submersible Canoe

Pictures Reveal the Story of British Heroism By Lone Men Under the Sea in Enemy Waters

In this underwater photograph taken in a calm sea, Britain's submersible canoe has just completely submerged. Smallest underwater craft in the world, it had a range of 30 to 40 miles at a speed of 3½ knots.

The wombat, which inhabits southeastern Australia, has a single pair of upper and lower chisel-like teeth which are rootless and grow continuously, like the beavers'.

The wolf increased greatly in the cattle country in the nineties and finally fell off in numbers before the organized attacks of government trappers.

The Nile river in flood rises about 40 feet.

Cruising on the surface of the English channel, the underwater canoe looks as innocent as a tiny speedboat on a holiday outing.

Puzzle: Find the canoe. In Mediteranean camouflage, an M.S.C. pilot shows how he could sneak up on an anchored enemy ship.

By NEA Foreign Service

LONDON, (NEA)—The story of Britain's "fighting canoe-men"—a wartime epic buried in secrecy and often submerged in enemy waters—was revealed for the first time today.

In a strange craft officially known as the M.S.C. (motorized submersible canoe), these lone men did their fighting under the sea at night attacking ships in enemy harbors.

These exclusive pictures show how the "canoe-men" went into action.

Not only the canoe, but the men themselves, had to be fitted out for underwater operation. The pilot, whose head and shoulders projected from the tiny cockpit, wore a rubber suit and oxygen breathing apparatus.

Great human endurance was required of the canoe-man. He and his craft were carried into enemy waters on the deck of a motor torpedo boat, or in a conventional submarine. Then he sets out on his mission, always working at night, sometimes forced to remain in his tiny boat for 10 to 12 hours.

The M.S.C., only 12 feet 8 inches long with a 27-inch beam, could be partially flooded by means of valves and travel with only the pilot's head above water, or it could be completely submerged. In 50 feet of water, it could loop-the-loop.

Although the assignment to man the submersible canoe was a life and death hazard for those who could meet the rigid physical requirements, young men waited in line to volunteer for the epic job.

No Grey Hairs for Charlie on Tenth Birthday

By Ralph Dighton

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 18—(AP)—After 10 years of the pace that kills, Charlie McCarthy hasn't a single grey strand in his thatch of red, but Edgar Bergen is beginning to wish he had enough hair left to turin grey.

Tomorrow Charlie and Bergen celebrate the 10th anniversary of their radio debut. They'll kick the subject around quite a bit in their Sunday patter, but chances are they won't remind listeners of the days when Bergen was thinking seriously of dropping Charlie in the nearest ash can.

For years Bergen played the vaudeville circuits with Charlie as a ragged newsboy at his knee. When vaudeville faded and night clubs became the style, Bergen was stymied. Cafe society didn't think much of Charlie, until his Swedish svengali dressed him in tails.

Still Not Satisfied

Even then Bergen wasn't satisfied with Charlie's impudent face and impertinent tongue. He dickered with Dave Smart for Esky, the cherubic-featured little wolf who ogles the pretty puppies on the cover of a men's magazine.

"I thought cafe society would prefer someone a little more suave and rakish," recalls Bergen. "That deal fell through, however, when Smart wanted to edit the script and have the final say on Esky's clothes.

"So it was Charlie in tails, or else."

The night club crowd took the new Charlie to its heart. Moving up (away up) to the Rainbow room in New York, Bergen and Charlie opened with Ray Noble and became an overnight success.

They were at an Elsa Maxwell party at the Waldorf when they met Noel Coward, who thought Charlie had radio possibilities and gave Bergen an introduction to Rudy Vallee.

Early Day Script

An early day script (Bergen has them all in his files) recalled the party in this manner:

Bergen: Charlie, watch your language because we have the cream of society here.

Charlie: What do you mean, the cream?

Bergen. The cream is always at the top.

Charlie: So is the scum.

After the Vallee program debut, Bergen and Charlie were set. From $1,000 a week, their paycheck rose steadily to its present $10.000.

But showman Bergen continued to examine Charlie with a wary eye. He though a little rough-humor relief might brighten the program and conceived the embodiment of stupidity, Mortimer Snerd.

Presented Mortimer

"The public didn't like Mortimer at first," says Bergen. "They resented him. They were afraid I was trying to find a substitute for Charlie.

"And strangely enough, they soon began to resent jokes about Charlie being made of wood. To them, he was real."

Then came Effie, but she was no success either. She sounded too much like Charlie's falsetto voice.

A tangible form of success came in 1938, when Charlie was given a wooden Oscar, with a moving head and mouth.

"I want to thank you for this little Oscar," quipped Charlies in his acceptance speech. "I didn't know you could make them so small."

Make Headlines

So real a person did Charlie become that he made the headlines in 1945 when Bergen lost him on a plane between Chicago and Hollywood. Charlie later was found in the baggage compartment undamaged—just forgotten.

Bergen: Rode past your station, did you Charlie?

Charlie: Yes. Stupid of you wasn't it?

At 44 Bergen is showing signs of wear and tear. He continually stretches and twists his neck to relieve the tension of concentrating on his various enterprises. Charlie has been commercialized for toys and gadgets. Bergen runs a ranch, a pottery business, an airport and aviation school and a television equipment studio.

When Bergen married Frances Westerman, a former model, in Mexico in June 1945, Charlie kept the secret for months. Then, after the news leaked out, he protested:

Popularity At Peak

"I never thought you'd do a thing like this. You told me you were going fishing, but it looks like you're the one that got hooked."

At the crest of popularity now, Bergen isn't much worried about the future. He's certain Charlie will look good in a cathode ray tube, "and Effie televises well, too."

Charlie is not so sure about it.

"You'd better watch yourself, Bergen," he warns.

Berge..: That so?

Charlie: Maybe you've forgotten it during these years on the radio, but when I'm talking you're not supposed to move your lips.

Bergen: I'm not that bad. am I Charlie?

Charlie: All I know is, after our last television show people told me they weren't sure who should be sitting on who's knee.

Randolph Scott, roving Texas sheriff, lends his spurs to famed adventuress Belle Starr (Isabel Jewell) in a scene from "Badman's Territory," spectacular saga of the sagebrush which opens a 5-day engagement today at the Liberty. "Badman's Territory" features all of the outlaws of the old west, including the James boys, the Daltons, Belle Starr, Hank McGee, Sam Bass and others.

Lenore Aubert turns on all her charms to win John Loder to her side in the exciting Alexander Dumas' story, "The Wife Of Monte Cristo."

ADVENTURE, ROMANCE AND THRILLS FEATURE "WIFE OF MONTE CRISTO" AT UPTOWN TODAY THRU TUESDAY

There is thrilling adventure, romance and high-geared action in "The Wife of Monte Cristo," which comes to the Uptown Theatre today, Monday and Tuesday. There is tense drama, too, with emotional conflict and the clash of sharply drawn characters that make for suspense and heart-gripping entertainment with a cast that does full credit to this glamorous romance based on the Dumas story. John Loder as De Villefort, the sinister prefect of police, with his accomplices, Danglars (played by Charles Dingle) and Maillard (Fritz Kortner). Lenore Aubert as Haydee, the wife, and Eduardo Ciannelli as Antoine, all give exciting and authentic portrayals. Second feture is "Blonde For A DAY" with Hugh Beaumont as the famous detective "Michael Shayne," supported by Kathryn Adams, his feminine assistant.

Tells of Her Trip to Coast

Wednesday, January 15th, the Quisenberry Extension Club met at the home of Mrs. G. L. Haggard, with Mrs. Robert Longen assistant hostess. The 1947 year books were given out, and Red Cross work was done. A contributive luncheon was served at noon.

The president, Mrs. R. S. Haggard, opened the meeting, and the usual order of business was followed. The monthly report was read by the secretary, Mrs. John Silsby. Roll call was answered by seventeen members, with "A convenience I hope to add to my home this year." It was voted to change the meeting day to the fourth Wednesday of each month.

Mrs. P. S. Read gave a very interesting account of her trip to the West Coast. Mrs. Ellen Shirley and Lynn, Mrs. Hortense Whirley and Tommie, and Mrs. Swearingen, were guests. The next meeting will be with Mrs. John Eirls, February 26th.

Won't Be Clipped

Recently voted the screen actress with "the most photogenic hair," Danish starlet Kristine Miller, above, is feuding with Hollywood director Byron Haskin, who wants her to cut her 22-inch blonde tresses down to a three-inch feather trim for her role in "I Walk Alone." "Back home, nice girls just don't cut their hair," says she.

Expecting a Baby?

Mother's Friend massaging preparation helps bring ease and comfort to expectant mothers.

MOTHER'S FRIEND, an exquisitely prepared emollient, is useful in all conditions where a bland, mild anodyne massage medium in skin lubrication is desired. One condition in which women for more than 70 years have used it is an application for massaging the body during pregnancy... it helps keep the skin soft and pliable... thus avoiding unnecessary discomfort due to dryness and tightness. It refreshes and tones the skin. An ideal massage application for the numb, tingling or burning sensations of the skin... for the tired back muscles or cramp-like pains in the legs. Quickly absorbed. Delightful to use. Highly praised by users, many doctors and nurses. Millions of bottles sold. Just ask any druggist for Mother's Friend—the skin emollient and lubricant. Do try it.

LISTEN! by Jim Carson

HO-HUM! It sure is nice to sit here with our feet on the typewriter and have some of the best writers around these (and any) parts guest-write our weekly column. Why didn't we think of this before? Talked Caroline Ellis into telling us what goes with her "Happy Home" (KMBC — Mondays thru Fridays, 8:30 a.m.)—and you, too, should be happy about the whole thing for Caroline is known the country over for her words of wisdom, making for good listening. (Your Uncle Jim—dreaming this week of a winter vacation with the mermaids off the coast of Florida).

What Goes

"IT TAKES A LOT of things to make a happy home." And it takes a lot of things to build a Happy Home radio program. When my broadcast was given that title and moved to a morning spot (from the afternoon where it had been) a number of people thought that now it would consist of "helpful hints to housewives." — "advice to the unhappy"—and so on. I had phone calls and letters telling me what magazines would be helpful to me. But having had a home of my own, I knew that happy homes needed more than those things—important as they are.

Caroline Ellis

I DO NOT THINK there is a job or a business in the world as complex as homemaking. And every home is a law unto itself, in what is most necessary and important to make it a happy one. Good housekeeping... good cooking (covered by another department)... child rearing... much technical knowledge... domestic relations... knowledge of the world and what's going on in it ....interest in public affairs and good citizenship... and more—together with countless individual needs and problems. From the beginning, I have tried to build my broadcast to help meet the needs, not of the housekeeper alone, important as they are, but of the homemaker, which covers it all.

You Have Done It

I WISH TO SAY, however, that it is my audience who has, from the beginning, built the "Happy Home." What I have done is keep an ear to the ground, to which I have been as quick as I could be to respond. So, we have built a broadcast which, I believe, is unique in radio.

If the expression of interest is general, I go on the broadcast with it. If by letter, then I answer by letter. So I have a double contact with my listeners. People often say to me: "How DO you find something to talk about every day!" I don't have to find it—it's handed to me by my listeners. What I do is think a little—hunt around some—and answer.

Friendly Visits

I AM SINCERE when I liken my broadcast to visiting with my neighbors. We talk about the President, likely, and foreign affairs and such things; then we jump to whether home-made "everlasting yeast" makes better light bread than "store-bought" yeast. Isn't that the way of life?—that diversity of interest! Isn't that what makes a happy and interesting home life? I think it is, and that's the way I try to keep my broadcast.

An Extra Service

THERE IS A FEATURE of this broadcast, however, which has developed behind the scenes, as you might say. One of those "extras" which nobody expected but which please me more than I can say. It has grown quietly, without fanfare, and even KMBC folks scarely know about it.

That's a sort of service to women's clubs. More and more, women are wanting to know things... about far-off places, say, and persons. And although many do not realize it, this territory around Kansas City it dotted with women's study clubs. It's all very fine. Many of these clubs do not have access to a public library; so it has developed that when I have something in my broadcast about Korea, say, or Tibet or Bikini—or any other of the many research features I have put on, in response to public interest, these clubs write in to me for copies to be used in their study. This is just one of those things, never planned in the beginning, which has grown, nobody knows how. I am a very fortunate woman to be the "pilot" of such a broadcast. Goodbye, my friends, until 8:30 Monday morning.—Caroline Ellis.

Drugs Destroy Intestinal Ameba
By William A. O'Brien, M. D.
Written for NEA Service

Infestation of the bowel with a disease-producing ameba is found in from 2 to 10 per cent of Americans, and the percentage will increase with the continued return of service men from highly infected parts of the world. Treatment with special drugs is successful, in the majority of cases, in destroying the ameba.

Human amebiasis results from the victim's taking small cysts of the ameba with food and drink. The small amebae which develop from the cysts produce intestinal ulceration and cause a variety of symptoms.

Concentration of parasites in the region of the appendix produces symptoms resembling appendicitis.

In mild cases, crampy, colicky pains in the abdomen, weight loss and weakness occur. Severe bowel complaints may not be present, and the disease is often recognized only when the amebic parasite is found in laboratory examinations.

Amebiasis is treated by giving the patient emetin during the acute stage and drugs containing iodine and arsenic in the chronic stages. The average patient responds quickly to treatment, but he must be kept under observation until it is certain that all amebae have been destroyed.

The main complicationof amebiasis is liver abscess, which results from the upward passage of amebae from the intestines. Ex-service men, especially those who have been in the tropics, should undergo a special medical examination if they develop signs of liver infection.

Humans Spread Amebae

Dogs, cats, monkeys, rats, guinea pigs and rabbits have been infected with disease-producing amebae. Dogs usually acquire the infection from man, but they are not a common source of exposure for human beings.

Kittens also develop the disease rather readily, but they are not of importance in human spread, either. Most human cases are caused by human carriers or by those who have the infection in mild form.

QUESTION: What are the early symptoms of tuberculosis? Why is it that healthy parents have children who develop tuberculosis? How young a child can get it?

ANSWER: There are no symptoms of early tuberculosis, and it must be discovered by X-ray. Later symptoms are coughing, expectoration, fever, weight loss, pain in the chest, etc. Children of non-tuberculosis parents contract the disease by exposure to other sources. Infants may develop it in the first year of life.

Coconut Island Shangra-La Will Cost Lots of Coconuts

Once an exclusive rest home for combat officers, this 12-acre Hawaiian island is being transformed into a lush club resort for weary, but well-heeled, business tycoons. Four-masted vessel in foreground is the Seth Parker, which wound up here at final anchorage after a floating radio career in the early 30's.

NEA Special Correspondent

HONOLULU, (NEA) — In the lush, tropical beauty of Oahu's Kaneohe Bay, 500 weary world businessmen who want to forget Wall street, governments, and balance sheets will relax on a 12-acre Hawaiian island of their own.

Cocoanut Island Club, International, owned by five U. S. industrialists, expects to open its shargri-la clubrooms to a picked membership within the next few months. Conversion of the buildings into club facilities now is in progress.

Fifty invitations each will go to New York City, Chicago and Texas. California and Hawaii will be given 75 bids and 25 each will be sent to England and Australia. The remaining members will be selected from cities all over the world.

Coconut Island, once the retreat of the late Christian R. Holmes, yeast fortune heir, was purchased last year for $250,000. Holmes spent a million dollars in 1933 converting a weed and rock-strewn waste into a private Garden of Eden with spacious lawns, gardens and swimming pools.

During the war, the army used the island as an exclusive rest camp for combat officers who turned Holmes' observatory into a zebra-striped upholstered cocktail lounge and decorated its walls with pink elephants and comic strip characters.

Already available for use by new members are a tennis court, an electrically operated shooting gallery, bowling alleys, an orchid garden and two swimming lagoons, one for morning and one for afternoon bathing—to take advantage of the sun as it moves across the island.

In all, the new owners expect to spend a quarter of a million more dollars getting their paradise dolled up for the first members.

Owners of the new club are: Ambassador Edwin W. Pauley; his brother, Harold; Allen Chase, aircraft manufacturer; Sam B. Mosher, oil company executive, all of Los Angeles, and Poncet Davis, Akron rubber and cotton manufacturer.

Just Like Old Times

Seems like the old days as passenger liners again arrive in New York crammed to the gunnls with pretty foreign females and colorful male visitors. These three, and many others, were on the SS. America when she docked the other day. Beryl Davis is an English radio singer. Prof. Ivan Mestrovic, top right, a Yugoslav sculptor, will teach at Syracuse University. Bishop Theophile Jonesco of the Romanian Orthodox faith will serve churches of that following in the U. S. and Canada.

Indians' Land Claim

By Vern Haugland

WASHINGTON — Uncle Sam bought a large part of the United States from the Indians for $800,000,000, but he may have to pay more for his bargain.

The U. S. Supreme Court has ruled that certain Oregon Indians have a claim against the federal government for lands taken from them almost a century ago, even though the claim was never recognized by treaty.

Experts in the office of Indian Affairs say the decision in effect recognizes the validity (but not the amount) of many other Indian claims based on aboriginal ownership.

"These may run into millions of dollars and may involve 65,000 or more Indians and upward of 250,000 square miles of land in the western states—plus nobody knows how much of Alaska," one said.

Department of Justice attorneys, who opposed the appeal to the Supreme Court, question the importance of the decision. They claim each future case will have to be settled on its own merits.

Constitution Superseded

But John H. Provinse, assistant commissioner of Indian Affairs, says:

"The court has gone beyond the constitution to recognize rights that out-date the constitution . . . It is a ruling to which the new Indian claim commission can look for guidance.

President Truman has yet to appoint the three-man commission. Indians will have five years to file claims, and the commission must complete settlement within ten years.

One opinion is that the newest Supreme Court decision will open vast areas to lawsuits by Indians. An opponent of this view said:

"Such would be the case if there were large areas still in question. But 90 to 95 per cent of our public domain has been purchased through valid treaties. The area not acquired by treaty, and thus opened to suit on the basis of aboriginal ownership, consists of less than 250,000 square miles.

A Long Fight

Since Civil War Days Indians have had to get congressional approval to bring each claim. Some Indians have sought the required special act fruitlessly year after year without success.

But by such an act in 1935 Congress did permit the Tillamook, Coquille, Too-Too-To-Ney and Chetco tribes of coastal Oregon to file sut for payment for 2,772,580 acres taken in 1855.

The Court of Claims found that the Indians had an "aboriginal Indian title" to the land, which they ceded under a treaty which was never ratified. The Supreme Court upheld the ruling and remanded the case to the Court of Claims for determination of the 1855 value of the land.

On the basis of past judgments, experts estimate that the amount, with interest, might total $15,000,000. Against this the government may offset benefits paid to the Indians since 1855. A Justice Department attorney says "those Indians have received almost everything in the way of cash payments and other benefits which they would have gotten under the "treaty."

Alaskan Reaction Expected

John H. Collier, former Indian commissioner, told a reporter:

"This is an historic opinion. Always heretofore the court has had a sort of platonic concern for the Indian's rights, but in practice has held to the view that the government could not be made to pay except upon proof that there had been a valid treaty. . . .

"The decision should have great importance in Alaska, where the Indians claim land through occupancy. It also may strengthen the position of California Indians."

A court held a year ago that 18 California tribes were entitled to $17,000,000 for their land. From this amount $12,000,000 was deducted as already paid in benefits. The 18 tribes protested that they were being billed for benefits extended to all the Indians of California.

Likely Source of Suits

Tribal areas acquired by means other than formal agreements of cession, and thus most likely to produce ownership suits, are:

Washoe Indians—a sizeable section of western Nevada and northeastern California.

Paiute Indians — semi-desert tracts comprising about half of Nevada, including the Boulder Dam area, and parts of southwestern Utah, northwestern Arizona and southeastern California.

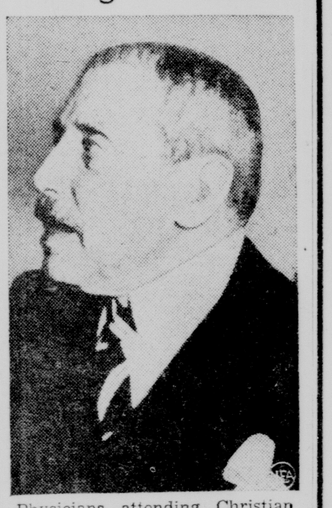

Yuma, Mohave, Cocopah, Papago, Pima and Maricopa Indians—southern and western Arizona and a smell segment of southeastern California.

Although a flood of claims may arise from the decision, an official pointed out that the Indian still will have to prove the validity of his claim.

"In the past," he added, "Indians have recovered about 2 per cent of the amount they sought in court."

The earliest routes to the west led through the Cumberland gap instead of the more convenient Hudson valley because of the hostile Iroquoise Indians.

King Stricken

Physicians attending Christian X, 76-year-old king of Denmark, fear the aged monarch is stricken with pneumonia. After suffering from a cold for several days, the king developed pneumonia symptoms.

In 1945 there were about 398,437 miles of railroad trackage in the United States.
